Recovery continues

Indicators climb again

By DENIS G. GUILINO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The government's sensitive leading economic indicators rose 1.1 percent in April, foreshadowing continuing recovery in the months ahead, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

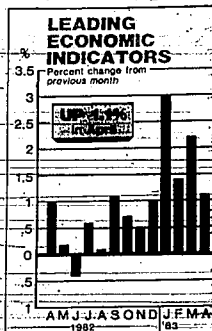

Although the government's economic trend detector was at its weakest so far this year — only half of the revised March gain of 2.2 percent — it was strong enough to reassure economists the recovery is not about to fade as it did last year.

"There will be no relapse," said the Commerce Department's chief economist, Robert Ortner. "The economic recovery is underway."

The composite index of leading indicators has been rising for 10 months, revised figures showed.

The April report showed nine of the 11 indicators were positive, led by the lengthening of the average workweek and higher common stock prices.

The only hint of problems to come was contained in the indicator for orders for consumer goods, which hardly moved. The experts have warned that the recovery will need steady increases in consumer spending to stay alive.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, in Williamsburg, Va., with President Reagan as the seven-nation summit ended, said the April report "is excellent news and shows the recovery is solidly on course."

Reagan smiled and flashed a thumbs-up.

Group urges delay on wilderness bill

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Members of several conservation groups asked Sen. James McClure Tuesday to delay action on a statewide wilderness bill, but an aide to the Idaho Republican said he aims to resolve the issue this year.

"One of our key arguments is that there is no crisis right now requiring us to pass a wilderness bill," Idaho Conservation League research coordinator Bruce Boccad said.

Boccad and members of two other conservation groups held an afternoon news conference after asking the press to leave a two-hour morning session with Idaho's senior senator.

The environmentalists had a "good, frank" discussion with McClure on several wilderness-related issues, Sierra Club regional director Ralph Maughan said.

During the meeting, environmentalists asked McClure to delay action on a bill that would designate 430,000 acres in the Boulder and White Cloud Mountains and the 20,000-acre Long Canyon in northern Idaho.

ICL member Tim Crawford said his group would recommend protecting a number of other areas after conducting studies this summer and fall.

McClure, who is chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, is seeking comment from a number of groups on how much land should be added to the approximately 3.8 million acres already protected in Idaho.

The U.S. Forest Service has recommended an additional one million acres while the Idaho Forest Industry Council's proposal calls for protection of 591,000 acres because members fear an inadequate timber supply.

Boccad said his group has not set a specific recommendation because it has not conducted the studies it feels are needed to propose "defensible boundaries."

"We feel we need to have a lot of field work before we can put together a thoughtful proposal," Boccad said.

Todd Neuschwander, an aide to McClure, said the senator may be willing to delay introduction of a statewide wilderness bill, but he feels he must go ahead with planned hearings in August.

He said the timetable was designed to coincide with a congressional recess that would allow the senator time to hold hearings on various wilderness proposals.

"We feel McClure was 'very receptive' to the conservationists' concerns, but he added the senator would like to complete action on the wilderness issue sometime this year."

"We can't delay it indefinitely, but we're not trying to close anybody out," Neuschwander said.

Crawford praised the senator's impartiality, saying he no longer believed McClure was biased toward the timber industry.

"We definitely got the feeling the senator is going to seriously consider our request," he said. "There are several different groups whose input he has to balance."

He said environmentalists wanted the morning meeting to be private to avoid "creating a political game" and preventing candid discussion.

New data takes stock of melting pot

By ELIOT BRENNER

WASHINGTON — Twelve times as many Americans claim Irish descent as there are people in Ireland, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday in an examination of the ancestry Americans claim.

Based on responses from the long form 1980 census forms, the bureau said about 50 million Americans — more than the total population of England — claim full or partial English descent.

It also said there are more than half as many Americans claiming full or partial German descent than live in both East and West Germany, and 10 million who claim full or partial Irish ancestry is 12 times Ireland's population.

And these figures were not even collected on St. Patrick's Day, when almost everyone claims to be Irish," said Census Bureau Director Bruce Chapman.

On the long form, people were asked to identify their ancestry, regardless of how many generations removed from the country of origin. Chapman noted that the definition was up to the individual, and in cases where a person's ancestors came from several nations the person may have listed just one.

The report showed that more than 83 percent of the nation's population identifies with at least one ancestry group, with 52 percent claiming a single ancestry and 36 percent claiming two or more ancestries. Twenty-one million Americans listed "Afro-American" ancestry, a number greater than the black populations of all but four African nations.

Other ethnic ancestries, both single and multiple designations, included: French, 13 million; Italian, 12 million; Scottish, 10 million; Polish, 8 million; Mexican, 8 million; American Indian, 7 million; and Dutch, 6 million.

The next largest ethnic groups, in descending order of size from 4 million to 1 million, were Swedish, Norwegian, Russian, not elsewhere classified, and Portuguese. The Russian not elsewhere classified category includes those who reported as Russian, Great Russian, Georgian and other related European or Asian groups.

The report provided a look at the geographic distribution of ethnic groups, showing a number of concentrations.

More than half the Italians and Norwegians live in the Northeast and North Central regions respectively, and almost half the Portuguese and 48 percent of the Russian not elsewhere classified group were concentrated in the Northeast, with almost half the Czechs in the North Central region.

Syrians vow to spill 'American blood'

By RIAD KAJ
United Press International

Syria warned Tuesday its troops may spill "American blood" if a new war erupts in the Middle East and vowed to end Lebanon's "utter submission" by destroying the Israeli withdrawal accord, Libya's state-run news agency said.

"Any treaty between Israel and any Arab country is a tragedy, in this case one of utter submission," Syrian state-run news agency said.

with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi in Tripoli.

"We must destroy this agreement," he said.

The Israeli-Lebanese accord calls for the withdrawal of Israel's 30,000 troops simultaneously with the pullout of Syria's 40,000 troops in the eastern Bekaa Valley and 10,000 Palestinian fighters in the northern port of Tripoli.

Syria has refused to withdraw its troops, blocking implementation of the pact, which ends the state of war between Lebanon and Israel, provided for Israeli security patrols in southern Lebanon and plans for future trade and diplomatic ties.

Before the trip, the newspaper of the ruling party in Damascus warned that 1,200 U.S. Marines in the multinational peacekeeping force in Beirut may be attacked if new fighting erupts.

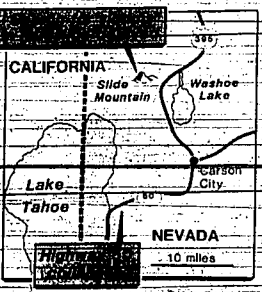

"If the United States wants to make Arab blood spill through a war it may be planning with Israel, this does not necessarily mean 'American blood' will not be spilled as well," said al-

Baath, the newspaper of the ruling Al Baath party.

Marine spokesman Maj. Fred Lash said he did not expect a new round of fighting but added, "If any U.S. Marines or sailors got hurt, we would fight back."

Al Baath said the Israelis massed three army divisions, 150 tanks, 3,000 vehicles and 50 cannons in three days in the Bekaa. The official Syrian news agency SANA said Israeli warjets broke "the sound barrier over the valley but did not say if Syrian forces fired anti-aircraft missiles at them.

Utah, Nevada mudslides spread destruction

By United Press International

A thundering black sea of mud crushed homes at the base of northern Utah's Wasatch Front Tuesday, and threats of flash flooding delayed the search for victims possibly buried under a mountainous mudslide in western Nevada.

The Utah slides forced police and fire department officials to evacuate 600 more homes in the north half of Farmington. In all, 200 homes in the city of 5,000 have been evacuated since Monday.

Davis County Emergency Services Director John Zippo said all residents and people battling Monday night's initial slide "have been pulled back from the two-square-mile area."

"We've ordered everything north of there removed. We just heard another slide is on its way," Zippo said after emergency sirens began wailing at 2:02 p.m.

Farmington is just one of several areas hit by the state by flooding as the record snowpack continues to melt because of warming temperatures. Officials said they were encouraged Tuesday by an approaching storm front that was expected to bring cooler temperatures by nightfall.

Although there have been no injuries in the latest slide, Davis County Sheriff's Deputy Jan Cunningham said his partner saved a young boy from the ooze.

"The boy was trying to wade through thigh-deep mud to get to his damaged home when he saw the slide coming down. We yelled at him, but he couldn't get out."

Officials also were forced to evacuate the Davis County jail, which was in the path of the latest slide. Deputy Harry Jones said the jail's 68 inmates were moved to other facilities for "precautionary reasons."

State Geologist Bruce Kalliser said the second slide was a "new wave" of mud, rocks and debris coming down. Rude Canyon from above the site of the lower slide. He said it was apparently caused by a break in an irrigation canal running along the mountains east of the community.

Kalliser said the new slide "seems to be slightly bigger" than the Monday night slide that destroyed six homes, damaged another two dozen houses, and forced evacuation of 200 residents.

In Reno, residents rushed from their homes by a giant landslide returned Tuesday to find their expensive houses in the scenic valley shattered after a huge mountain of mud, boulders and debris.

The landslide Monday killed one person and injured six. Hundreds of residents and Memorial Day picnickers fled when the slide, triggered by melting snow, slipped down 9,694-foot Slide Mountain, pushed the water out of two small lakes high on the slope, and generated a huge surge of water that spread into a deep fan a half-mile wide on the floor of Washoe Valley, 20 miles south of Reno.

Washoe County Sheriff Vince Swinney said the only person known dead was Joseph Valenzuela, 36, a tractor and rubber roller operator who was working in a friend's home when the torrent struck.

"We definitely got the feeling the senator is going to seriously consider our request," he said. "There are several different groups whose input he has to balance."

He said environmentalists wanted the morning meeting to be private to avoid "creating a political game" and preventing candid discussion.

Forest fires rage in Panhandle

KINGSTON (UPI) — Fire-whipped by high winds urged through a heavily timbered northern Idaho forest Tuesday, charring 370 acres and forcing supervisors to summon new crews to help the 300 beleaguered firefighters already rushed into the rugged mountain region.

The blaze — fanned by 36 mph winds and burning out of control at the 3,000-foot level of Bumblebee Peak about 15 miles north of Kingston — was the first big forest fire in the state this year.

A steady wind of 20 mph per hour and gusts of nearly twice that speed typhoid firefighters called in from six western states, and 60 more people were being dispatched to the scene to augment the firefighting force, said Panhandle National Forest spokesman Susan Vots Sheppard.

Mortars fired in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftists pummeled an army garrison with mortar fire and captured an American-built communications center Tuesday that directed all army radio traffic in eastern Morazan province, the army said.

The fate of 75 soldiers atop the center atop 4,900-foot Cerro Cacahuale volcano in San Francisco Gotera was not known. The army claimed two soldiers and 45 rebels were killed but the figures could not be independently verified.

Salvadoran officers said U.S. military advisers were "directing the operation" near the beleaguered center.

American military advisers in El Salvador have standing orders barring them from involvement in combat operations.

Drug-related death at festival

DEVORE, Calif. (UPI) — A second death at an US Festival campground Tuesday further marred the three-day rock concert, which attracted bigger crowds but caused more arrests, medical problems and hassles than last year's affair.

Concert organizers and law officers, meanwhile, began preparations for a one-day country concert next weekend just hours after the final chords of new wave, heavy metal and mainstream rock performers like David Bowie, U2, Stevie Nicks, Van Halen, The Clash and Men at Work faded from the huge amphitheater in a mountain pass 65 miles east of Los Angeles.

Both deaths connected to the rock concert appeared to be drug-related.

San Bernardino County Sheriff Floyd Tidwell said John Stephen Sardiella, 24, of Tahoe City, Calif., died by friends shortly after dawn Tuesday, was apparently "an overdose victim."

Romans poisoned with lead

DETROIT (UPI) — Ancient Romans loved to drink lead-tainted wine, and a scientist said Tuesday traces of the toxic metal found in skeletal remains is the first supporting evidence to the theory linking lead poisoning to the fall of the Roman Empire.

Tests on skeletons buried by the Mount Vesuvius volcano eruption 1,900 years ago provides new evidence supporting the lead poisoning theory, Sara C. Blasi, an anthropologist and archeologist, said in an interview after addressing an American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting.

"Much has been written about lead as a factor in the decline of the Roman Empire," she said. "Everyone else has been looking at the literature. This is looking at the actual bones of the actual people. That's why it's important."

"This is the first time that we've had actual Romans to test. The results are preliminary."

BPA readies wildlife research

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Bonneville Power Administration is preparing to award 50 contracts for some $6 million worth of research to enhance Pacific Northwest fisheries, BPA Administrator Peter T. Johnson announced.

The BPA also is renewing contracts for 30 existing fish and wildlife projects on which about $4 million already have been spent, Johnson said Tuesday.

The projects are a result of the 1980 Regional Power Act, which calls for a program to enhance fish and wildlife along Northwest rivers impacted by power developments. The act established the Northwest Power Planning Council and directed the council to develop the program, to be funded by the BPA.

"Most of the program is built around the life cycle of salmon and steelhead," John Palensky, head of the BPA's division of fish and wildlife, said.

Peru stages search for rebels

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Government security forces Tuesday mounted a nationwide dragnet for leftist guerrillas on the first day of a two-month state of emergency throughout Peru.

More than 500 people were arrested in the central Andean city of Ayacucho — focal point of intense guerrilla activity — but nearly all were released after questioning for not having proper identification papers, police sources said.

The 2,000-man military command in Ayacucho, 230 miles southeast of Lima, also said government troops killed 59 Maoist rebels of Sendero Luminoso, or Shining Path, in four days ending Monday, raising to 369 the number of reported rebel deaths.

A total of 76 people have died in the department since troops arrived at the start of the year.

Cancer treatment uses pump

BOSTON (UPI) — High doses of cancer drugs delivered directly to the diseased organ 24 hours a day with a small, silver pump implanted in the chest dramatically improves the lifespan of colon and liver cancer patients, a study said today.

President and Mrs. Reagan leave the international summit to a life-and-drum sendoff

Bands signal end of summit

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — As colonial life-and-drummers piped the last foreign leaders out of town Tuesday, President Reagan triumphantly proclaimed the official end to a "very successful summit."

The ninth summit, whose business concluded Monday afternoon with a unified "Williamsburg Declaration on Economic Growth," ended on a colorful, anachronistic note.

A life-and-drum corps in colonial garb escorted each foreign leader to a gleaming helicopter for a flight to Langley Air Force Base, then home.

President and Mrs. Reagan said separate farewells to each leader at the Williamsburg Inn, then, with a final wave to European Commission president Gaston Thorn. Reagan got the cheering news from Washington that the leading economic indicators had risen a hefty 1.1 percent in April.

Reagan hosted leaders from France, Italy, Japan, Great Britain, Canada and West Germany at the three-day summit in this throwback to America's colonial days.

In a group interview with eight reporters just before leaving Williamsburg, Reagan said: "There were no winners or losers" at the summit.

"This wasn't any case in which five said to two, you're overrated and this is what we're going to say" no.

Before we settled on it, all seven were in agreement."

Reagan said the commitment to follow up the summit with a system for monitoring the world economy may be one of its more important accomplishments.

"There is a great willingness on the part of all of the (other leaders) to face up to some social changes in order to get control of excessive spending," he said.

Reagan and Nancy walked hand-in-hand from Providence Hall, the reconstructed home where they were staying, to the nearby Williamsburg Inn to bid farewell to the remaining summit leaders.

Reagan sees solid Soviet rapport

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — President Reagan, heartened by three days of talks with Western leaders, declared Tuesday relations with Moscow are on the mend and any further strain "will be because the Soviet Union causes it."

Reagan, speaking to reporters at the end of the three-day economic summit, said leaders of the major Industrial democracies want a thaw in East-West relations — if the willingness is reciprocated.

"We're ready at any time, if they want to make it plain by deed, not word, that they want to join in the same things that are of concern to all of us — the betterment of life for our people," Reagan said.

Asked whether hours of private summit discussions led him to believe relations with the Soviets will be better or worse, Reagan replied, "I see better, because I think all of us have a more realistic view of them."

But he cautioned, "This may not be visible in the rhetoric in the immediate future, because there's an awful lot of rhetoric that is delivered for home consumption."

"thumbs up" sign when reporters asked his reaction when he stepped from his helicopter at the White House later.

The improvement in the U.S. economy was the biggest single factor that allowed summit participants to agree with Reagan that time was on their side, resolving trade disputes by eventually improving their own economies.

Ortner said indications now are that the latest White House forecast for 4.7 percent growth in 1983, and 5.5 percent national product will be exceeded. "It looks like we're going to beat the official growth projection," he said.

The strongest of 11 April indicators were an expansion in the length of the average workweek and another increase in the average price of 500 common stocks compared to March.

The weakest indicators, pulling down the increase, were a declining money supply and the formation of new businesses.

The chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers, Jerry Jasinowski, agreed with administration economists that 1983 will be more robust than even the White House has predicted.

"During the next three quarters, real economic activity should expand at an annual average of over 5 percent," he said.

Both Jasinowski and Ortner agreed the current April-June quarter could be the strongest of the year, with a GNP annual rate of growth of 6 percent or more.

Also making positive contributions to the April index were a slackening in new claims for jobless benefits, new orders for factory equipment, building permits, changes in raw materials prices, an expansion of outstanding credit and the pace of deliveries.

The composite index of leading indicators was 132.7 in April compared to a 1967 base of 100.

Today's weather

Partly cloudy with chance of showers

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome

Gooding areas:

Partly cloudy with a chance of showers today and Thursday. Cooler and breezy. Highs in the middle 60s both days. Lows in the middle 40s.

Camas, Prairie, Halley, Wood River Valley:

Partly cloudy today and Thursday, with a chance of showers or isolated showers. Highs near 60, lows near 40.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Scattered showers and thundershowers today and Thursday. Highs near 60, lows near 40.

Idaho:

Partly cloudy today and Thursday. Highs in the 70s today and upper 60s Thursday. Lows in the 40s.

Synopsis:

A low-pressure system over northern California on Tuesday and related circulation patterns will dominate Idaho's weather the rest of the week.

The result will be temperatures near or below normal for the next five days, plus scattered showers and thundershowers over the southern two-thirds of Idaho through Thursday.

On Tuesday, mostly cloudy conditions were reported over all but the extreme northern and eastern parts of Idaho. A few showers and thundershowers moved over the Boise and Twin Falls areas with brief periods of light rain reported. Radar indicated thundershowers along the Idaho-Nevada border, which appeared strong enough to generate hail and gusty winds, but there were no surface reports to confirm the radar readings.

Winds were light except for velocities of over 20 mph briefly at Strevell and Idaho Falls.

Afternoon temperatures were cooler than Monday, with Twin Falls readings at mid-afternoon almost 20 degrees cooler, and other reporting stations down 5 to 10 degrees. The state's warmest temperature was 52 degrees at Lewiston, after morning lows ranging from 31 at Dixie and Elk City to 64 in Homedale.

In Twin Falls, the pollen count on Tuesday was 148 per cubic meter of air.

The agricultural outlook calls for total precipitation over the next five days of .10 to .20 inch, with the best chance of showers Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Four-inch mean soil temperatures, now in the upper 60s to upper 70s, will cool 2 to 4 degrees by Thursday, then show little change.

Daily average evaporation rates will lower to .15 to .20 inch through Sunday. Windy today and Thursday will be 4 to 8 mph in the mornings and 10 to 15 mph in the afternoons.

Placeholders in the nation Tuesday, the hottest temperature reported was 104 degrees at Phoenix, Ariz., and the coolest was 21 at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Murderer to enter monastery

SNOWMASS, Colo. (UPI) — Residents of a scenic mountain valley near the ski resort of Aspen don't like plans of a convicted murderer who wants to retreat to a nearby monastery when he is paroled.

If he thought he was dangerous, we wouldn't have accepted him," said Father Michael Abdo, abbot at St. Benedict's Monastery. The monastery has offered to let William "Gene" Jones stay there for up to eight weeks when his one-year parole begins in September. Jones, 34, was sentenced in 1974 to 15 to 25 years for the slaying of a Colorado University coed.

When the word reached residents in the Snowmass Creek Valley, 20 miles from Aspen, they objected. Talks between residents and the monks collapsed in mid-May. Residents are now planning to petition the State Patrol Board.

'Raiding' farmer goes to trial

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — A jury will be proud to acquit farmer Wayne Cryts even though he admits raiding a Missouri grain elevator in 1981 to reclaim soybeans impounded in a bankruptcy, his lawyer said Tuesday.

A jury of seven men and five women was selected earlier Tuesday to hear a contempt of court case against the 36-year-old Puxico, Mo., farmer who allegedly violated a court order in the raid to reclaim his soybeans.

All the jurors said they had heard or read about the case, but assured U.S. District Judge G. Thomas Elisele they had not formed opinions about the defendant's guilt or innocence.

Defense attorney Bill Wilson said the jury will be asked to acquit Cryts because the government cannot prove the farmer knew about a May 27 bankruptcy court order to sell his soybeans.

Home sales decline in April

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing sales fell 4 percent in April while the average price for a new house hit a record $89,200, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The annual rate of new-house sales in April was 573,000, the lowest since December and an indication, industry analysts said, builders may have been too optimistic in construction schedules.

Yet the sales rate was still 67.5 percent ahead of a year earlier, the sixth consecutive month above the half million mark.

An earlier report showed April's rate of new housing construction starts was a healthy 1,490,000 units, a year despite an 8.4 percent decline from 1981.

Michael Smithurst, chief economist of the National Association of Homebuilders, the country's largest construction trade group, said the report mirrors industry surveys.

Ford recalls autos, trucks

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. Tuesday announced four separate recalls of cars, trucks and four-wheel drive vehicles. The largest of 11,719 1983 Ford LTD and Mercury Marquis models.

The LTD and Marquis models are being recalled to install luggage compartment decklid latches that were inadvertently omitted during production at the Chicago Assembly plant.

Owners are being asked to call dealers for an appointment to have the latches installed.

Ford also is recalling 544 1982 Ford Granada and Mercury Cougar models with 2.3-liter propane powered engines for inspection and replacement of a fuel tank retaining strap.

Ford said a supplier shipped it straps that had inadequate spot welds. If an accident occurs, the fuel tank can drop out of position and be damaged, resulting in possible leaks or potential fires.

Holiday fatalities total 417

By United Press International

Despite extra police patrols and crackdowns on drinking drivers, 417 people were killed on the nation's highways during the long Memorial Day weekend — 76 more than died during the holiday a year ago.

The final United Press International count at 1 p.m. EDT showed 417 people died in traffic accidents during the weekend, which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

Last year, 341 people were killed in Memorial Day holiday traffic accidents. The 1981 total was 426.

California led the count with 53 deaths, followed by Florida with 28 and Texas with 21. Nineteen people died in Ohio and Pennsylvania, 17 each in Alabama and Colorado, 16 in New York and Georgia, Indiana, North Carolina and Missouri each at 12, and 10 people were killed in Illinois and in Michigan.

Judge will not split fortune

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge granted a default judgment Tuesday against billionaire Sheikh Mohammed Al-Fassi, but said he would not divide a "sue and set aside the national debt" in ruling on community property for the first of his three wives.

Superior Court Judge Robert Fainier said he would hear testimony Wednesday afternoon from attorneys for Sheikh Dena Al-Fassi, 24. She is seeking a divorce from the 28-year-old oil-rich Saudi Arabian plus half his estate, valued at about $2.5 billion with rumors it is worth billions more.

After the ruling the sheikha said she thought Fainier was a "fair judge."

Farmers earn more in May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers increased their earnings on crops and livestock for the fifth straight month in May, while the costs of running their farms also inched higher, the government said Tuesday.

The Agriculture Department reported the prices received by farmers for their crops and livestock in May were 0.7 percent above April levels. Even with the increase, prices were still 1.4 percent below those of one year ago.

In the last 22 months, prices have climbed above those recorded one year earlier only three times — September of last year, and this year in March and April. But revised figures show the April increase was smaller than preliminary figures had indicated.

Study forecasts better cars

DETROIT (UPI) — The "vehicle of tomorrow" will have a smaller engine, contain more plastics and aluminum and rust less quickly, a pair of University of Michigan researchers predicted Tuesday.

David Cole and Lawrence Harbeck described cars of the next decade in a paper entitled "Automobile Trends: The Vehicle of Tomorrow" presented to the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Cole and Harbeck are known for their work on U-M's continuing "Delphi" studies which forecast automotive trends.

"The U.S. automotive industry is in a period of fundamental structural change. Emerging from this transformation is a better industry producing a far more competent and efficient product from almost every viewpoint," they said.

Freedom rider has ability to sue FBI

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — A Freedom Rider who said he was beaten and crippled for life by Ku Klux Klansmen at an Alabama bus station 22 years ago may sue the FBI for damages, a federal judge ruled Tuesday.

U.S. District Judge Richard Enslin said there was a "preponderance of evidence" to indicate the FBI knew the Klan planned to attack Walter Bergman, who is white, and other Freedom Riders when their buses arrived in the Deep South. Bergman has been confined to a wheelchair since the attack.

A federal judge in Ann Arbor ruled in a similar case last week that the FBI was not liable for the 1965 Klan murder of Detroit civil rights activist Viola Liuzzo after the Selma-to-Montgomery voting rights march in Alabama.

Bergman, 63, a former Wayne State University professor from Grand Rapids, sued the FBI for $1 million for himself and another $1 million for the estate of his late wife, Frances. Any money he is to receive, however, will be determined at a separate damage hearing, probably later this summer.

In his 83-page ruling, Enslin said the FBI "had specific information from a number of sources" that the Klan would be given a free rein by police in Anniston and Birmingham to attack the Freedom Riders.

Bergman and other Freedom Riders, both black and white, were attacked and beaten when their bus arrived at the Trailways station in Anniston on May 14, 1961.

Freedom Riders rode commercial buses into the Deep South in the 1960s to test compliance with Supreme Court decisions on equal public accommodations for blacks.

Enslin said there was "reasonable cause for the government to see that, absent federal intervention, the conspiracy against the Freedom Riders would proceed and the Riders would be threatened, beaten and injured."

Bergman and other Freedom Riders were injured "because of the government's breach of duty," he said.

Supreme Court won't hear Abscam challenge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Avoiding a confrontation with charges the FBI abused the Constitution in its Abscam "sting," the Supreme Court refused Tuesday to review the convictions of four congressmen caught in the bribery operation.

The justices, without comment, left intact convictions of four House members snared by offers of cash from phony Arab sheiks, rebuffing arguments the government had used outrageous means to trap them into taking illegal payments.

The court also rejected arguments the bribery probe, which resulted in the conviction of six representatives, and Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., violated their constitutional immunity from prosecution for legislative acts.

Reps. John Murphy, D-N.Y., Michael Myers, D-Pa., Raymond Lederer, D-S.C., and Frank Thompson, D-N.J., now face fines and jail sentences of up to three years each.

Reps. Richard Kelly, R-Pa., whose conviction was reinstated earlier this month, and Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., have not appealed their Abscam convictions to the Supreme Court.

All either resigned or were defeated for re-election. The high court's action clears the way for the first of the convicted congressmen to go to jail.

This is the third time the high court has declined to examine Abscam convictions, leaving little hope for remaining defendants trying to escape their sentences.

In other actions Tuesday, the justices:

- Ruled unanimously in cases from Pennsylvania and New Jersey that the federal government has the power to force states to repay mispent educational funds.

- Splitting 7-2, refused to decide whether a black defendant can challenge a prosecutor's throwing minorities off the jury at his criminal trial.

- On a 5-4 vote, said courts in some cases may block the forced sale of a married couple's home to pay back federal taxes owed by only one spouse.

- Took up a challenge to the Reagan administration's easing of federal air pollution rules involving the Environmental Protection Agency's redefinition of a pollution source as an entire plant, rather than certain parts of a plant.

- Agreed to consider whether Iowa must try twice-convicted Robert Anthony Williams a third time.

Innocent man gets $1 million

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 66-year-old man who at age 18 was wrongly convicted of murdering a detective and came within two hours of being executed in 1936 has been awarded $1 million by a state court, officials disclosed Tuesday.

Isidore Zimmerman, 66, of New York City, was imprisoned from 1938 to 1962 and sought $10 million from the state. He said he was "very unhappy" about the award made by May 24 by the Court of Claims, 21 years after his release.

His claim against the state had been turned down three times. He said he lost hope in 1971, but renewed the claim in 1980 after meeting a new lawyer, Fred Fabricant.

"I feel I should have gotten much more. I lost so much that can never be replaced. I would have had children. I would have cherished someone calling me 'Daddy.'"

I have had so many disappointments in my life. The nightmare will stay with me the rest of my life. I have not had a good night's sleep since I left prison," Zimmerman said.

He said he would take "a world cruise" with his wife, Ruth, who waited for him while he was in prison and married him when he was released.

Zimmerman, a retired doorman who lives in Queens, said he would appeal the decision by Court of Claims Judge Joseph Modugno.

Custom-made families by sex selection

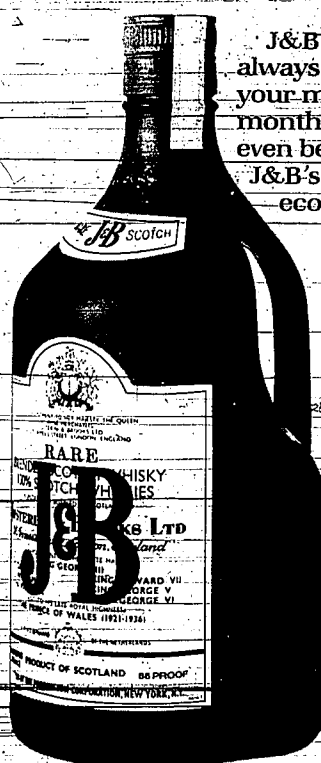

DETROIT (UPI) — Sex selection — determining the sex of a baby in the mother's womb and aborting the fetus if it isn't the desired sex — is being performed in the United States to create "custom-made" families, scientists said Tuesday.

"It is possible to determine the sex of the child before the child is born by doing amniocentesis," Anne B. Swanson, associate chemistry professor at Edgewood College in Madison, Wis., said in an interview after addressing the American Association for the Advancement of Science annual meeting.

Amniocentesis, usually performed in older pregnant women to determine if the fetus has Down's syndrome, involves insertion of a needle to withdraw amniotic fluid from the womb.

Don't lift incentives on auto purchases

Despite the still shaky nature of the economy's recovery, American automakers apparently are thinking seriously about removing consumer incentives, which have aided greatly the purchase of new American cars by millions of people.

They apparently have short memories, or perhaps they're just overcome with the prospect of upping prices again and thus getting more from the consumer for the same car.

We think dropping the incentives — most of which are in the form of lower interest rates or rebates — would be a bad idea.

The reason is that it will drive potential buyers away at just the time the American auto industry needs them.

For many consumers, foreign autos already make a lot of sense on three grounds: quality, fuel efficiency and most importantly, price.

Incentives have been an important way in which American manufacturers have slowed the hemorrhaging of the domestic auto industry by narrowing the price gap. Removing them now will make American cars just that less competitive against increasing foreign imports.

Yes, auto manufacturers have suffered, and now that they see the American economy begin to recover, they apparently are being tempted to increase the prices to the consumer again, which is what removing the incentives does.

But as Chrysler's experience is proving, what is really needed is modern, progressive management, a good advertising campaign and fundamentally, an ability to change with market conditions.

Chrysler, by the way, says it will keep its incentive interest rates. We think the other American manufacturers should do the same. If they don't, it won't take consumers long to note the price gap between American and foreign cars. And they shouldn't need a crystal ball to guess which way many consumers will go.

Republican gesture helps Democrats

It didn't have as much hype as the Williamsburg economic conference or the "Return of the Jedi," but the Democratic Party's weekend television extravaganza had more than enough.

Budgeted at $6 million and modestly labeled "Celebrate America," the Democrats hoped the show would raise $10 million for their ever-depleted coffers. They bought up 17 hours of not-too-prime time and interspersed a mighty task of singers, dancers and jokers with not-too-constant pleas to mail money.

The advance publicity for the show intently promised "a historic 17-hour celebration of the American people — our concerns for the present, our hopes for the future, and our determination to make the American dream come true again."

This is pretty ordinary political tub-thumping, and would have gone unnoticed had not the Republicans chosen to notice the Democratic fund-raiser. Republican computers cranked out a fast million letters to members of their team. Inviting Republicans to participate in the Democratic fund-raiser by phoning in and telling the Democrats they were all wet and that Ronald Reagan was on the right track.

The Republican letter said nothing about jamming the phone lines, or clogging the Democratic switchboard with unsympathetic messages. No, they merely invited Republicans to exercise their constitutionally guaranteed freedom of speech to express views contrary to the messages they were hearing. Who could get excited about that?

Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt, that's who. He may have been really excited. The Democrats had, after all, committed $6 million to produce and advertise the show. The Democrats did not have the $6 million, which is pretty exciting. More probably he saw a great chance to get publicity for his show and jumped on it.

"One of the biggest dirty tricks I ever saw," complained Manatt, "is that these Republicans could achieve the eminence of national chairman having led such a sheltered life. Republican National Chairman Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr. helped the Democrats mightily. It was not his words protesting innocence and defending the right of free speech. It was his gesture."

There is high self-satisfaction for any image-conscious public figure when he abandons restraint and addresses his adversary with thumb to nose and fingers wagging. Thus did the national chairman of the Republican Party address the national chairman of the Democratic Party.

The gesture was an error. The temporary feeling of gratification has worn off and the gesture is permanently preserved in the archives of the media. A few stiff necks will pontificate that it demeans the political process. Worse for the Republicans, it hyped the Democrats' fund-raiser.

The fund-raising telethon was a great success, meaning it raised great funds — $14 million after expenses. Democratic chairman Manatt is torn between proclaiming the success and threatening to sue the Republicans for spoiling it. "It's by far the biggest fund-raising event in the history of the country," he said. "There's every indication," he added, "that the Democrats will have to sue the Republicans for spoiling it."

Oh, come now. The Republicans contributed at least as much as the Democrats in publicizing it. The Republican chairman's thumb and four wagging fingers were probably worth a quarter of a million dollars each.

It is easy to understand Mr. Manatt's being of two minds on the show. So am I. The advance publicity told us to "get ready to feel good again."

The show has come and gone and that good feeling never set in. The Democrats are very strong on our concerns for the present. You can see them on the news every night. Unemployment, huge deficits. They are pretty good at expressing our hopes for the future and making the American dream come true again.

How we get from today's concerns to tomorrow's hopes is where the Democrats turn vague. A cast of 60 — count them — stars all telling stories and... telling jokes and singing and dancing their little hearts out is fine for raising dough, but that has as much to do with solving real problems as a thumb and four wagging fingers.

Otis Pike, a former congressman, writes his column from Washington.

Talk doesn't come cheap any longer

Anyone who still believes talk is cheap probably hasn't heard a U.S. senator make an after-dinner speech recently.

Their pear-shaped tones are, as Woody Allen might say, even more expensive than one-shaped pearls.

According to official compilations, the 100 senators in the aggregate collected $2.4 million in speaking honorariums last year, largely from special-interest groups, at a maximum fee of $2,000 per speech.

Any payments that might have been made to buy their silence were not included.

The speaking fees themselves are only the tip of the head table, so to speak.

Peaks of wisdom that senators share with their audiences don't grow on rostrums, you know.

Generally speaking, these pricey tidbits are gathered on fact-finding missions taken overseas at taxpayer expense during congressional recesses.

Their majestic words don't just magically appear on teleprompters either.

Most of the heavy hitters in the Senate have squads of staff assistants, also paid from public funds, who can double as ghostwriters.

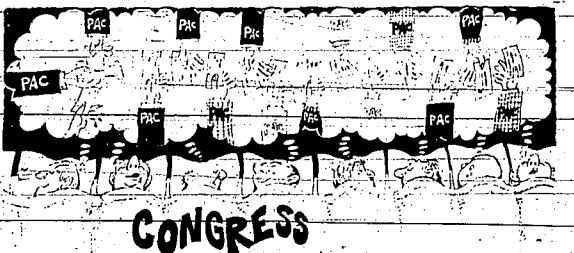

Why, you may ask, would anyone pay to hear a senator when they can wait until he becomes a presidential candidate and then hear his campaign speeches for nothing?

For the answer to that question, let us wire-tap a conversation between the executive director of the National Conglomerate of Swizzle Stick Manufacturers and the program chairman for the organization's forthcoming convention.

Executive Director: Very well, that takes care of arrangements for the closing banquet except for the after-dinner speaker. I recommend trying to get Senator Crashmore.

Program Chairman: Crashmore? Is he an eloquent orator?

ED: No. As a matter of fact, the senator has a bad speech impediment. But he is the ranking member of the subcommittee that handles swizzle stick legislation.

Dick West

PC: That's eloquent enough for me. Would he be offended if we tendered him an honorarium?
ED: I said he had a speech impediment; there's nothing wrong with his reach.
PC: How large should the honorarium be?
ED: That depends on how long the speech is.
PC: How long do you suggest?
ED: That depends on the size of the honorarium.
For the maximum speaking fee, we are entitled to a speech of minimum length.

PC: What about the topic?
ED: Winter is a good time to have a convention because the senator will have just returned from a fact-finding mission to Jamaica. Therefore, he will be loaded with information.

PC: But they don't make swizzle sticks in Jamaica.
ED: I know, but they sure have nice winter weather down there.

PC: Is it hard to get an airfare reservation that time of year?

ED: Not to worry. The senator will be traveling by Air Force transport after a stopover in Paris.

PC: Why Furliff France isn't on the way to Jamaica.

ED: You're right, but there is no congressional fact-finding mission to any part of the world that doesn't require a stopover in Paris.

Troubles with IRS

On Friday, May 27 you wrote an article on Tax Protesters Harass IRS. But how about an article on how the IRS harasses the public? I am sure there are a lot of people with similar problems, but my husband and I have discovered what kind of problems you can run into if the IRS owes you a refund.

We filed a joint return in February and the IRS decided we made a mistake. They waited six weeks to write and inform us that because of our mistake it would take another six weeks to get a refund.

Our accountant sent them a letter showing them it wasn't our mistake but theirs. While we were trying to get the proof together they sent our refund to the State Health and Welfare. IRS did send us a letter saying why they did it though.

Three years ago, a 30 year old woman filed a paternity suit against my husband. She had been living in Health and Welfare so the state took my husband to court not once but twice so far. But with all the money we have had to spend to try to prove my husband is not the father of this child, the case is still not completed and a judgement has never been handed down against my husband. But I suppose IRS has its own rules and regulations and they spend our money as they saw fit.

Oh, to get back to the first mistake IRS had made on our refund, they sent us a card six weeks later saying they received our letter and it will take another 45 days for them to check it out.

In your article you stated: people getting angry at agents and others, wanting to sue IRS. I don't blame them.

I love the United States and consider myself a good citizen but if an organized group of people came to my door tomorrow to try to change the system I would have to think twice before saying no.

Used batteries work

The $16,000 the state spent for mobile home to be used as an exorcism chamber is a total waste of the ready, able and willing taxpayer money. A back filled with flashlight batteries would do the job. And to cut the cost more, make sure they are used batteries.

Faith Whittlesey still driving her Sherman tank full speed

Loye Miller Jr.

Mrs. Faith Ryan Whittlesey was sworn in to her high-level post on the White House staff last March 7, but she has already begun to make her mark.

To some of her colleagues, indeed, her tracks are fast beginning to look like graffiti on the gleaming walls at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

In case you didn't notice, Mrs. Whittlesey, who had been ambassador to Switzerland, replaced Elizabeth Hanford Dole as assistant to the president for public liaison, when Mrs. Dole became secretary.

To some who know a little bit about Mrs. Whittlesey, it seemed a curious move at the time. The White House Office of Public Liaison is not a diplomatic operation that goes out, on behalf of the president and the administration, to a wide range of ethnic groups, unions and business organizations and all sorts of other special constituencies. Including many that are not necessarily admirers of President Reagan and his programs.

Mrs. Whittlesey, a feisty 44-year-old widow, was an exceptionally able state legislator and chairman of the county board of Delaware County, in Pennsylvania.

But as a diplomat, Faith Whittlesey handled her political rivals in Pennsylvania with al-

the finesse of a Sherman tank: Republican moderates and feminists who had to deal with this rabid Reaganite at the 1980 Republican convention emerged looking like they had been through a cement mixer.

It must be conceded that somehow the nation got through her two-year hitch as an ambassador without the Swiss declaring war.

And in her public appearances since joining the White House staff, Whittlesey has kept a low profile and rocked no boats.

But a succession of leaks indicates that behind the scenes she is still attacking full speed ahead at every opinion that does not jibe with her own extremely conservative and distinctly usable views.

One of the first major things she did — this lady who is supposed to be the president's liaison — was to declare flatly that the administration should simply write off the black vote on grounds that Reagan will never get much of it no matter how hard he tries.

She has since come down hard against key elements of a legislative program a White House task force is putting together to please feminist activists. In an effort to soften the so-called "gender gap," Reagan's severe political problem among women. And then last week, at a Cabinet-level meeting, Mrs. Whittlesey told the president to his face that the gender gap was a myth. "She told him that we don't have a gender gap, just a communications gap," spluttered another high-level presidential staffer afterward. "My God, this, after the rest of us have spent the past three months trying to show the president just what a mess he is in with a lot of women."

Said another key White House official, "Ed Rollins (the presidential political adviser) has got a whole deskful of polls documenting the gender gap. That woman is crazy."

Indeed, not even presidential pollster Richard Wirthlin, who tends to soft-pedal the gender gap a bit, has ever tried to pretend that it did not exist.

Others, including respected Republican pollster Robert Teeter, regard it as an extremely dark cloud on the 1984 presidential horizon. As Wirthlin notes, 52 percent of the Americans who went to the polls in 1980 were women. He predicts that in the next few presidential elections, that female majority may be even larger.

Given that only 47 percent of women voters backed Reagan in 1980, compared with 56 percent of men voters, this frightens most White House strategists.

But it doesn't appear to faze tough Faith Whittlesey, who seems still to be one of those people who may be wrong — but is never in doubt.

Experts weigh psychotherapy methods

Wednesday, June 1, 1983 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 4

By PATRICK YOUNG
Newhouse News Service

DETROIT — Psychotherapy works for many people suffering from such things as depression, phobias and anxiety attacks. Now it is time to learn why, and which talk techniques work best for which patients.

That was the agreement among an expert panel at the annual meeting of the American Association for Science here Tuesday. But its members could offer little guidance to help troubled people find the most effective treatment.

Beyond avoiding fringe things like "astrological" and "tea-leaf" therapies, the best psychiatrist Leon Salzman of Georgetown University School of Medicine could suggest was staying "within credentialed therapies."

Several panel members did note that evidence now suggests that how well a person does in psychotherapy often depends on how good a relationship is forged with the therapist in the first few sessions. So if a good rapport isn't established in five to eight sessions, a patient may want to seek help elsewhere.

"I feel patients should find someone they can work with," said psychologist Morris B. Fainoff of the federal government's National Institute of Mental Health. He added that this idea runs counter to classical Freudian thinking, which views any difficulty between patient and therapist as patient "resistance and not to be indulged."

Long-debated in-mental-health—the effectiveness of psychotherapy has become a political and economic issue as attempts are made to cut rising health-care costs.

Private insurance companies want to know if they are paying for proven treatments. Congress has raised the issue with regard to paying for Medicare and Medicaid patients, and questions whether psychologists and psychiatrists should be reimbursed on equal terms.

The problem facing psychotherapists, as one panel member noted, is the "paucity of proof on psychotherapy's effectiveness."

Contributing to this are the diverse approaches to psychotherapy — "250 brand names and variations," Fainoff said.

Two recent studies — which between them reviewed 597 separate trials designed to test the value of the major categories of psychotherapies — suggest that all major types of psychotherapy work equally well.

Several panel members challenged that conclusion, arguing that the individual studies reviewed were inadequate to support such a sweeping statement.

Alzheimer's rampant

DETROIT (UPI) — Alzheimer's disease — once ignored by doctors who mistook its symptoms for the natural process of aging — is reaching epidemic proportions and has become the nation's fourth leading killer, scientists said Tuesday.

The brain disorder causes memory loss, confusion, speech impairment and personality change.

"Alzheimer's disease is considered to be the fourth leading cause of death," killing 120,000 people annually, said Nancy R. Lombardo of the National Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association.

"We used to think Alzheimer's disease was a disease that only affected the elderly. However, now we know it can occur at a much earlier age," said neurologist Dr. Roger Morrell of Wayne State University School of Medicine.

"We also now know senility is not normal aging but a disease process causing specific chemical and physical changes in the brain."

In 1983, Alzheimer's will strike between 2 million and 2.5 million Americans, Ms. Lombardo said.

Ugandan refugees massacred in revolt

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Anti-government guerrillas armed with guns, axes, spears and knives shot and slashed their way through a refugee camp, slaughtering at least 120 people in one of the worst massacres in Uganda since Idi Amin's overthrow four years ago, newspapers and survivors said Tuesday.

Another 60 people were injured, most of them seriously, by the attackers, some of whom were dressed in police uniforms, the reports said.

"They were bayoneting (guerrillas)," said one survivor from his hospital bed in Kampala. "There were a few armed with guns, a few dressed in dirty police uniforms but most were in rags," he said.

The youthful survivor who did not want to be identified for fear of reprisals said the guerrillas were armed with guns, axes, spears, clubs, machete-type pangas and knives.

Local newspapers quoting survivors and camp officials put the death toll at about 200. Survivors interviewed by UPI said the number of dead was between 120 and 150.

The government of President Milton Obote played down the reports and said the death toll might be exaggerated.

Armed guards provided for the major candidates last week will remain on duty, even though two IRA suspects believed to be in Britain on an assassination mission surfaced in Ireland during the weekend.

"The protection will stay, the situation has not changed," a police spokesman said. Police sources said the IRA squad may have been up to six strong, with four members possibly remaining in Britain.

With only nine days left for the opposition to whittle down the 17 percent popular opinion polls lead for Mrs. Thatcher, labor officials stepped up accusations.

Labor officials cited a government document circulated to regional health authorities and said the Conservatives would allow state health care to be supplanted by private medicine.

Health Minister Norman Fowler said the charges were "self-evidently untrue" and that private medicine had played a role in the health service since its inception in 1948.

TV ship visits China

PEKING, (UPI) — Ursula Andress joined the regular stars of the "Love Boat" Tuesday as shooting began on the first episode of an American television series ever filmed in the People's Republic of China.

"I'm exhilarated by this whole experience," said actor John Forsythe, whom American viewers will see later this year trying to confess a murder to Miss Andress as the two stand on China's Great Wall.

"I had a choice to go to Palm Springs. So far nothing has topped the Forbidden City for me," Forsythe said. "That is what one imagines China to be."

Other stars taking part in the special two-hour China episode include Linda Evans, Lee Majors, Erik Moran and Susan Anton, who plays the part of a woman who must undergo recapture and is terrified of operations.

In all, 120 actors, camera crews and technicians were aboard the Pacific Princess for her trip to China.

"Marco Polo" and "Big Bird" (two American television specials, were previously filmed in China, but executive producer Douglas S. Cramer said "Love Boat" is the first TV serial to be filmed there.

Thatcher denies wanting to scrap health plan

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher denied Tuesday she wants to end Britain's socialized medicine, chastized Britons for going on strike and promised to reinstate the death penalty if re-elected June 9.

"I would no more think of dismantling the national health service than I would think of dismantling our defense forces," she said in response to opposition Labor Party claims she wants the poor and elderly to pay for their own health care.

In a BBC television interview, she said the accusations were "absurd, false, bogus, phoney and calculated to deceive."

With Mrs. Thatcher back from the Williamsburg summit, Scotland Yard warned anew the outlawed Irish Republican Army was still planning a terrorist attack before the election.

Health Minister Norman Fowler said the charges were "self-evidently untrue" and that private medicine had played a role in the health service since its inception in 1948.

Mrs. Thatcher predicted Britain's record 13 percent unemployment would fall in her next term of office but said she could not promise joblessness would abate since that depended on individual workers.

"I could not foretell that people in good jobs would go on strike and let the world know that when they've got good jobs and good prospects they nevertheless put them in jeopardy by striking," she said, referring to two recent strikes.

She restated her belief in nuclear deterrence as the only alternative to surrender or capitulation before an enemy with nuclear weapons.

The prime minister also said she personally supported the death penalty for certain crimes and that the Conservatives would introduce a death penalty bill if re-elected.

Disarmament promise carried by U.S. envoy

By BARRY JAMES
United Press International

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, who earlier accused the Soviet Union of stepping up missile deployment, brought a "solemn pledge" from President Reagan to European allies Tuesday. The Washington is deeply committed to nuclear disarmament.

Weinberger, in Brussels for a meeting of NATO defense ministers Wednesday and Thursday, told the Belgian Royal Institute of International Relations:

"Today I bring you a message from President Reagan—a solemn pledge which is echoed by myself, by Secretary (of State George) Shultz and the entire U.S. government."

"That is, that President Reagan is personally and deeply committed to reducing nuclear weapons. Arms reduction and the maintenance of deterrence weigh equally on his mind and he will do everything in his power to seek and reach a mutual reduction in nuclear armaments."

Weinberger flew to Brussels from Bonn, where he told a news conference at the end of a two-day visit. The Soviet Union has stepped up production of its SS-20 medium range missiles in a move to maintain nuclear superiority over the West.

"The Soviet Union now has at least 300 SS-20 missiles, that is more than their official figure of 351. They are determined to maintain a monopoly in this field and keep superiority," Weinberger said.

He said the nine more SS-20 missiles are above the officially recognized statistics.

ARABIC NAME

Q. How is the last name of Libya's leader, Muammar, supposed to be spelled?

A. Khadafi, Gaddafi, Qaddafi, Qadafi, Kadafi or Gaddafi. Any of the above might turn up in English-language publications. There is no standard way to translate Arabic spellings, that's why.

Q. What's the greatest catastrophe in modern American history?

As the explosion and fire that killed 561 people in Texas City, Texas, in April of 1947.

Q. How many times has the White House been painted?

A. Can only tell you that Bureau of Standards tests in 1982 revealed at least 22 coats of paint on it. The record shows it's usually painted every four years - before each inauguration.

Marilyn Monroe portrait 'painted' with 700 pounds of fertilizer on California hillside

Marilyn's mustard tresses bewitch traffic on highway

ALAMO, Calif. (UPI) — Her eyes like as green as chlorophyll, her hair yellow-as-wild-mustard, her 6-foot milkweed lips put characteristically at the rush-hour commuters.

A vision in ragweed, the 200-foot portrait of Marilyn Monroe, "painted" with 700 pounds of fertilizer, began to appear a month ago on a hillside overlooking Interstate 680 just outside of Alamo, 30 miles east of San Francisco.

It was so worried rain from the heavy winter storms would make the fertilizer drop, I had to postpone my project a couple of months," said watercolor artist Will Ashford, who got help from a troupe of engineers, surveyors, architects, and artists in reproducing Andy Warhol's painting on the mountain.

"But Mother Nature sure made up for it all by giving me an unexpected bonus—mustard-flowers where Marilyn's yellow hair should be. So her eyes are really green and her hair naturally blond."

Intended primarily as a "relief" from rush-hour traffic, the image of the sex symbol is most clearly visible during the early evening, "when the sun is behind the commuters driving home and casting a soft, sensual glow on her face," Ashford said.

"Art should also be educational. A lot of people didn't know that Andy Warhol did a portrait of Marilyn," said Ashford, whose first hillside landscape four years ago depicted the Mona Lisa.

"When I did the Mona Lisa, a lot of kids who saw her from the car later went to the library to read all about Leonardo Da Vinci and his masterpiece. That's just what I wanted to accomplish."

In January, Ashford and his friends hiked up the mountain, marking the outline of the movie queen's famous face with sticks and strings, then "painted" the 140-by-200-foot portrait with ammonium sulfate donated by Standard Oil.

"It took us a whole day," said Ashford, "who landscaped self-explanatory words like 'green,' or 'longer' on leaves six years ago before progressing to portraits and mountains."

It will be at least two years before Ashford can grow his next work. It takes that long for the greening effect of the fertilizer to work its way out. Ashford already has his model picked out—but won't tell who it is.

Refugee valedictorian of her class

DUNG NGUYEN
She taught in her.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — A Vietnamese refugee who spoke no English when she came to the United States eight years ago is now the valedictorian of her high school's senior class with a perfect 4.0 grade average.

Dung Nguyen, 17, said she challenged her 334 senior classmates at Pensacola High School "to do their best" in the future during graduation ceremonies Tuesday.

"It's about challenging my classmates to do their best to do their part for this country, contribute their best to this country," she said of her speech.

Miss Nguyen learned her first words of English at Eglin Air Force Base eight years ago after coming to the United States with her family.

"I learned some English at the base," she said. "Hello and thank you, that's about it."

Miss Nguyen, who has won a pre-med scholarship to Baylor University, said she especially enjoyed her science classes.

"I enjoyed my English, physics, chemistry and math analysis," she said.

Her physics and chemistry teacher, Craig C. Exner, described the girl as a diligent student who also taught teachers about Vietnamese. About 2,000 Vietnamese refugee families have settled in Pensacola.

Despite her grade average, Exner said Miss Nguyen hasn't boasted of her success.

"She gets along with well with other students," he said.

Landon in private room after hip surgery

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Republican patriarch Alf Landon, who broke his hip in a fall at his home Tuesday, was moved from the intensive care unit of a hospital to a private room for two weeks of recuperation.

Landon, defeated by Franklin D. Roosevelt in a 1936 presidential bid, was in satisfactory condition at Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center. Landon was hospitalized Saturday night when he fell at his west

Topeka mansion and broke his right hip.

An orthopedic surgeon inserted three metal pins into Landon's hip Monday during a 1½ hour operation. Landon tolerated the surgery well, his doctor said.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., was among those well-wishers who sent the two-term Kansas governor greetings Tuesday. In a letter from Washington, Dole congratulated Landon on his successful surgery.

"An unfortunate mishap is always unpleasant but keep up your good spirits and know you have my best wishes for a speedy and complete recovery," Dole said.

Landon's daughter, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said the operation was the first major surgery her father had undergone. Mrs. Kassebaum plans to remain in Topeka this week to be near her father and will return to Washington early next week, a member of her staff said.

Casino signs Beach Boys

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt didn't want them—in Washington, so the Beach Boys will apparently be playing in the sand outside an Atlantic City casino on the Fourth of July.

The popular rock band, which has performed in resort showrooms twice in the past year, is close to signing a contract to perform on the beach outside Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel-Casino on July 4, said casino spokesman Dennis Gorski.

The concert will be free to the public. Caesars is apparently so confident of landing the group that billboards announcing the concert have already gone up.

Trustees, teachers at impasse

By DIANA HOOLEY
Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — An impasse was reached Tuesday night in contract talks between Glenn's Ferry teachers and the school board.

The deadline is over the district's pay scale.

"There's no way we can accept that present pay scale," Clifford Mitchell, the teachers' chief negotiator, said at the end of a 90-minute bargaining session.

"It's inequitable," and a teacher would have to be teaching for 23 years before he or she would reach the top salary the school district offers, he said.

"That's the highest 'top-out' in the state of Idaho," Mitchell said.

"Are you telling me that there is no way you're going to accept our pay scale?" asked Randy Bohannon, the professional negotiator who has been hired by the school board.

"Yes," Mitchell replied.

At that point, Bohannon recommended that the teachers should request the services of a federal mediator to help resolve the dispute.

Before the breakdown occurred Tuesday night, the negotiators reached tentative agreement on the issue of base pay. It will be set at $12,240, a 2 percent increase over the present base pay of $12,000.

Originally, the teachers had requested an $800 increase in their base pay.

However, during the first negotiating session, held earlier this month, Bohannon said the board would like to stay with the current base pay.

"The financial circumstances of the state don't justify such a salary increase," he said then.

But Mitchell said the teachers were "justified in asking this increase, as Glenn's Ferry teachers are being paid in the lower 20 percent of teacher wages throughout the state."

Statewide, for a bachelor's degree with no experience, Mitchell said, "Glenn's Ferry ranks 76th out of 112 school districts, as far as teachers' salaries."

After the first negotiating session, Superintendent Jim Reed had said the current pay scale rewards stability in the district.

"Our base is low — we make no bones about it, but our top-out is in the higher 20 percent of the state."

He said the pay scale is designed to encourage teachers to further their education and go on to a master's degree program.

"We pay our teachers $100 each year for continuing education courses in their field, and we sponsor those classes right here in the school, so they don't have to go to Boise or Mountain Home," he said.

At the first bargaining session, Mitchell had asked the board about its $207,900 carryover from last year.

"Are you suggesting we spend our reserve on teachers' salaries?" Bohannon asked.

He said the school board had decided it would prefer to invest this money or at least a portion of it.

Next year, the school will be debt free and the board would like to have the reserve in case of more state or federal cutbacks, as well as such things as building repair, he said.

McClure says

INEL has chance of making weapons

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

BUHL — U.S. Sen. James McClure says that the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory has a "50-50 chance" of being the location picked for a new U.S. nuclear reactor that would be used in the production of nuclear weapons.

McClure, back in Idaho during the annual Memorial Day recess by Congress, made his prediction Tuesday night at a "town meeting" in Buhl, which was attended by some 50 residents.

McClure said tritium, a radioactive element, that would be produced by the reactor is needed to maintain the current level of the nation's nuclear weapons arsenal.

Placing this facility in Idaho, he said, "would be good for the country and good for Idaho."

And once the facility is in operation, McClure said, it also would provide a fringe benefit: process steam to generate electricity.

However, McClure's stance was challenged by Buhl resident Kirk Christensen, who urged the senator to oppose locating the reactor in Idaho.

"Don't do it," Christensen said at the end of a lengthy discourse, "I think you've done a pretty good job so far in Washington, but stall, stall, stall on this one."

Those comments came toward the end of the meeting, during which McClure listened to residents talk about topics ranging from the faults of the Federal Reserve system to the problems of airline deregulation.

McClure opened the meeting with remarks about the economy and El Salvador.

"The most significant problem we are facing is the recovery of the economy. We are going to have to find a way for people who want to work to find a way to get a job."

Government action alone, he said, cannot bring down interest rates. He said that many banking officials are worried that the growing national debt once again will fuel inflation. Therefore, they are not ready to bring down their interest rates.

Turning to El Salvador, McClure echoed President Ronald Reagan's hard-line policy.

"El Salvador," he warned, "is not half-a-world away, as was Vietnam or Korea. It's right at our backdoor."

A communist takeover of Central America, McClure said, would bring millions of immigrants to the United States. To prevent this from happening, he said the United States needs to step communist takeover attempts in Central America.

'Shower' scheduled for new maternity ward

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An open house for the public to view the new maternity ward at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center will be held at 7 p.m. this Friday.

And an orientation session will be held at 3 p.m. on Friday for childbirth educators and the staffs of area children's doctors and family physicians.

The new second-floor unit was designed as part of the hospital's overall renovation project, in consultation with doctors and nurses involved in child care.

The unit is designed to provide labor and delivery beds in the same area, a feature that is considered "an advanced concept of childbirth," according to Trudy Tario, a spokeswoman for the hospital.

"It really makes a lot more sense," Tario says. "It eliminates the need to take a patient from her bed, put her on a stretcher and make that mad dash to a delivery room."

"That's upsetting; it breaks the mother's concentration. If the new unit helps avoid that anxiety and stress."

Four large labor-delivery rooms, decorated in muted colors, will be outfitted, with specially designed birthing beds for the comfort of the mother. Also included will be reclining chairs that will make waiting easier for support persons, "such as a coach or father attending the birth," Tario says.

A private waiting area also will be available for the families of laboring mothers.

The newborns may "room in" with their mothers in the two private and 14 semi-private recovery rooms in the unit.

Low-risk patients, screened by their physicians, may decide to use a special birthing room, where the mother can go into labor, deliver her baby and enjoy its company in the same room. The maximum stay allowed will be 24 hours.

All of the rooms will be outfitted with birthing beds that can be adjusted into a variety of positions to help the mother through labor and make her recovery more comfortable.

Also included in the unit will be a room for Cesarean births.

The unit, which has equipment capable of handling most of the complications of such births, will also avoid tying up other operating rooms, and it will mean that "when the mother recovers, she won't wake up in a room full of sick people recovering from surgery," Tario says.

The Cesarean-recovery room, located near the 19-bed nursery, can be placed in the hospital's newborn intensive-care unit, which can handle up to 14 patients.

Ground work

Steve Davis of World Enterprises Ltd. spent Tuesday working on the footings for the new Idaho State Police headquarters at Osterloh Avenue and Eastland Drive in Twin Falls. The building also will provide space for the state highway division's Twin Falls maintenance branch and the state communications bureau's area office.

Teachers seek direction, flexibility in new superintendent

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The new superintendent of the Twin Falls School District should be a leader who can turn the whole system around, says Judy Watson, a teacher-a-Big-Ed-Employee School.

Watson made her comments, along with those by about 25 other teachers, at a special school-board meeting Tuesday.

The district needs a superintendent who understands that Twin Falls is a conservative area, but who will not be blocked by a few conservative thinkers, Watson said.

The new administrator has to be a money manager, said school board member Jack McNeese. But the district also needs someone who will not be intimidated by the Legislature, said school board member Dr. Jack McNeese, in response to Watson's comments.

"I would like to see the superintendent in the schools more," said Dan J. Alexander, a teacher at Sawtooth Elementary. The district needs an open-door policy, with two-way communication, she said.

The new superintendent has to be a public-relations person, Alexander said. Board Chairman Bob Knighton agreed. "The superintendent is a very public man."

Teacher Monte Katzenberger said she wants someone who exudes excitement and energy to lift the morale of the teaching staff.

The new administrator should understand libraries, said one librarian. Librarians do not just stamp books out; she said.

And one office worker asked for a reduction in paperwork. The paperwork seems to increase annually, and office workers do not always understand what it is used for. The superintendent should at least explain why it is necessary, she said.

The superintendent should have recent classroom experience, understand the legislative process and have a Ph.D., said Dick Chilcote, the president of the Twin Falls Education Association. Chilcote also suggested that the board redistribute administrative duties to reduce the need for more administrators.

Jeanne Alban wanted the board to look at candidates from all geographical areas and to disregard the age or sex of the applicants. Knighton said the board will look at all candidates, but he said the board does not have time to advertise the job in the East.

Connie Hutchison, the vice president-elect of the Idaho Educational Association and a teacher at Morningstar Elementary, asked the board to include teachers in the screening process.

Knighton, however, rejected that suggestion.

"We want your input, but we will make the final decision."

In response to questions on the superintendent's salary, Knighton said the $44,500 figure "isn't stupendous, but isn't disgraceful either."

Knighton said money is not the only incentive the district had to find a superintendent. The board will have a school board that is ready to work with him, he said.

The school board now has held meetings with its administrators and its teachers to find out what those employees want in a superintendent. The board hopes to find a replacement for Superintendent James Sawin by July 1.

Sawin is leaving Twin Falls to become an assistant professor at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Texas.

The school board has invited the general public to add suggestions at a third meeting, which will be held next Tuesday, June 7, at 8 p.m. in the school district office. Knighton has requested that comments be submitted in writing.

School board members will review all of the remarks before outlining the formal guidelines that will be used in the selection process. The application deadline has been set for June 12, but it will be extended two weeks if the response to advertisements is weak, Knighton said.

The board is considering a visit to the finalists' home districts to get a better idea of their previous work, Knighton said.

Both teachers and school-board members seemed pleased with Tuesday night's exchange. One teacher said she was not happy with the state of contract negotiations, but she was pleased that teachers had been included in the selection process. This is the first time the board has asked teachers for advice on how to pick a new superintendent, she said.

Mowing accidents worry surgeon

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The lawn is looking like the Great Plains.

So you decide to slap on a hull of shorts and sandals, whip out the old lawn mower and get right to it.

"If you go out there, you're running for trouble and possibly some injuries," Dr. Fredrick Surbaugh, a Twin Falls orthopedic surgeon, says he treats many injuries each year due to the use, or rather misuse, of power lawn mowers.

Among machine-related accidents, the most common cause of injury, induced blindness is from operating a mower, he says.

Emergency-room personnel at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center see several mower-related accidents each summer. And during the course of a year, Surbaugh and the other doctors at Twin Falls Orthopedic Associates treat 15 to 20 serious injuries.

Ninety-nine percent of them are premature, Surbaugh says. People just underestimate the power and its potential danger.

A rock or piece of wire lying on the lawn is transformed into a missile when it is run over by a mower. A rock can be shot out of a mower at the same velocity as a .22-caliber bullet. That's enough to break a leg or blind someone, he says.

He tells of one case where a piece of wire went through a man's heel and fractured it.

Gross-covered pieces of wood can cause infection when they hit an uncovered leg.

Objects also can ricochet off a wall or fence and strike the operator in the face. And projectiles thrown by a mower have been known to hit a child playing nearby or a wife bending over her garden, he says.

Surbaugh also says he's treated a number of people who have had their toes and fingers clipped by mower blades.

The most common incident is people reaching inside a self-operating mower to clear out wet grass. They do not believe their fingers can reach the blades, he says, shaking his head. But they do — and he sees the results.

But there's one Magic Valley Regional Medical Center administrator who lost a foot — a foot lost June 1 when his left foot got caught in a mower. There was another case of a man who did lose some toes when he ran over his foot, Surbaugh says.

Pushing a mower up or down an incline is dangerous. The operator's feet could slip underneath the blades on the way down, Surbaugh says. Or going up the hill, the mower could fall back on top of him. There was such a case in Portland, where Surbaugh practiced previously. A man died after a mower fell on him.

Riding lawn mowers also can be unsafe in the wrong hands.

"People think these mowers are toys, so they let their children ride them and operate them," he says.

He had one case last year where an 11-year-old ran over his younger brother. The child lost part of his knee.

"The bottom line is that children should not operate them or be around when they are operated," he says.

The doctor's prescription for lawn mowing: the caution around the machines. Even though it may be hot outside, wear long pants, a shirt, heavy shoes and goggles or heavy-duty glasses. Also, clear the area of people and objects.

Manufacturers are making the machines safer, but operators "try to defeat them," he says.

In the directions for his own riding mower, there are 31 safety practices to consider, Surbaugh says, he read them all.

Hospital entrance to be closed

TWIN FALLS — The main entrance to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center will be closed today and the emergency department will be moved to the main entrance.

Drivers should use Martin Street or Shoup Avenue West to enter the public parking lot.

The repaving of the Addison Avenue entrance marks the final phase in the hospital's parking project.

Man admits taking truck

TWIN FALLS — A 19-year-old Paul man, who led police on a 2 1/2 mile chase down Kimberly Road, admitted taking a stolen truck Tuesday to charges that he was driving a stolen truck at the time.

Jose Hernandez, who listed his address as the Paul Labor Camp, could serve five years in prison for the confession.

But prosecutors had to dismiss a second charge — an accused him of attempting to force one officer off the road several times during the April 11 chase — in order to get the guilty plea.

Hernandez has remained in the Twin Falls County Jail, in lieu of $1,500 bail.

The defendant told Judge Daniel Meehl that he took the truck at Jackpot and drove it to Twin Falls.

Smoke damages rural home

FILER — An apparent electrical-caused fire caused extensive smoke damage to a rural Filer residence early Tuesday.

The house, located two-and-three-quarter miles southwest of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, and owned by Philip Hafer of Route 3, Twin Falls, was vacant at the time. The owners reportedly are in Louisiana, said Filer fire Chief Larry Alsworth.

Since the fire never broke into flames, structural and water damage was limited, Alsworth said. No damage estimate was available Tuesday.

Firefighters are unsure how long the fire had been going when it was first detected at 5:20 a.m.

Curious at "popping" and "cracking" noises coming from the house, a neighbor found the building filled with smoke and sparks coming from the main electrical panel.

Merchandise taken from car

TWIN FALLS — In what was the biggest theft in Twin Falls reported during the Memorial Day weekend, a Twin Falls man said someone stole more than $1,100 worth of merchandise from his car.

Kevin Ellstead, who lives at Washington Park Apartments, said the theft occurred between 9:45 p.m. Monday and 5:40 a.m. Tuesday.

Someone broke into Ellstead's locked car, parked at his residence, and removed a camera and stereo equipment, which were valued at $1,177, police said.

Woman charged in food theft

TWIN FALLS — A woman who has been accused of deliberately avoiding the checkout counter while grocery shopping reportedly jailed Tuesday, in lieu of $1,500 bail.

Mary H. Velasquez, 31, of 235 Quincy St. in Twin Falls, is accused of second-degree burglary in the weekend incident.

Police said she attempted to leave Waremart, 1703 Kimberly Road, on Sunday without paying for the groceries she had collected.

Flooding stabilizes, but rain not wanted

KETCHUM — The flood threat in the Ketchum area from the Big Wood River was "about the same as the last two days," Ketchum police Chief Cal Nevland said Tuesday.

Little additional structural damage was reported Tuesday, as the river continued to run over a foot above flood stage along most of its length. Precautionary sandbagging efforts over the weekend have helped keep property damage in this year's flooding to relatively insignificant levels, although it has caused a great deal of inconvenience to some property owners.

Cooling weather, expected to last at least through the weekend, is reducing the rate at which snow is melting into the mountains, slowing the amount of run-off that is causing the flooding.

"If it stays this cool, we'll be OK," Nevland said. "The water could start dropping in the next couple of days."

"Of course, if it rains," he said, referring to ominous grey clouds outside the windows of his office. "We'll be in trouble."

"If that happens, we'll just hang it up and build an ark."

Inmate in hospital after 'stabbing'

JEROME — A Jerome County Jail inmate was being treated at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome, on Tuesday for what a sheriff's deputy said was a self-inflicted "pencil wound."

According to Chief Deputy Larry Webb, Andre Charles Laurent, 31, of Jerome, was injured about 6:30 p.m. Saturday. He underwent surgery at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and was transferred Sunday to the Jerome hospital.

Webb said the man, who was being held on robbery charges following an incident early Friday morning, apparently "stabbed" himself "with a pencil." The injury severed the main artery in the groin area and resulted in severe bleeding.

Webb said the inmate called for help on the jail's intercom system. Prisoners are allowed to have pencils for writing letters, Webb said.

"We aren't sure if the man intended suicide, or simply wanted to injure himself, but it was not an accident," Webb said.

Drug strike force gets federal backing

BOISE — A federal official said Tuesday he believes formation of a "personnel strike force" combined with training to help foresters and others detect marijuana fields — will deter some Idahoans from even trying to cultivate the illicit substance.

Marijuana growers no longer will be able to operate unimpeded in Idaho's mountainous back-country, partly because officials from at least three agencies will be trained to identify commercial operations, said Bob Dunne, agent-in-charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration's Boise office.

Dunne said last week he believes Idaho produces more marijuana an-usually than all but five or 10 other states. Narcotics officers last summer seized 12,489 plants with an estimated street value of more than $31 million, he said.

The DEA agent said training now being conducted by the state law enforcement department and special instruction scheduled in June for more than 30 government employees will allow narcotics agents to respond more quickly to reports of pot-growing, especially in remote regions.

"We're law enforcement are more aware of what is going on, and we're reacting a little more quickly to the tips," he said. "We're no longer sticking our heads in the sand."

State officials will create the strike force by assigning two officers in each of five regions, Dunne said. When pot fields are spotted in isolated areas, the state will have on hand a trained force ready to move quickly, he said.

Publicity about the expanded efforts probably won't deter the "professional" marijuana farmer, but it could keep an inexperienced grower from trying to get a start in the business, Dunne said.

Dunne said drug agents hope to get much more information on pot-growing operations this summer than in the past, in part from response to a newly created marijuana hotline for citizens.

Officials announced last week they had started a toll-free telephone line — 1-800-52-GRASS — designed to provide rewards of up to $1,000 for accurate information from citizens about commercial growing projects.

Dunne said employees from the U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and state Fish and Game Department will be instructed in how to identify commercial growing operations — and how to avoid possible confrontations with producers.

Spokesmen for the agencies said they believed their roles would be to support the anti-pot efforts by providing information and logistical assistance.

"Our basic concern is being able to recognize what we're looking at when we run into it," said Dale Bailey, chief of enforcement for the Fish and Game Department.

"We're not gearing up Fish and Game people to take active enforcement actions when we encounter it," Bailey said. "Ours is strictly an observe-and-advise role."

Judge denies spy's helper a reduced sentence

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Federal Judge Harold Ryan has refused to reduce the five-year prison sentence he imposed on Gloria Ann White for harboring Christopher Boyce and assisting the fugitive "spy-in-a-Northwest bank robbery spree."

The U.S. District Judge in Boise signed an order rejecting a motion filed by the woman's attorneys in mid-May seeking a reduction in sentence or immediate parole.

Ryan did not give a reason for denying the request, saying only that he had completely reviewed Mrs.

White's case file before rendering his decision, which was detailed in court papers Tuesday.

Mrs. White, 43, Newport, Ore., sought a reduction in sentence because she says she had health problems and has experienced difficulty in finding places for her children to stay while she is in prison. She began serving her sentence at the Federal Correctional Institution for Women at Alderson, W. Va., after she lost or dropped appeals of her conviction.

Mrs. White was sentenced in May 1982 on convictions for hiding Boyce in northern Idaho in 1980 and 1981 and helping him plan robberies of banks in Montana, Washington and Idaho.

Boyce — convicted in 1977 and sentenced to 40 years in federal prison for selling U.S. satellite secrets to the Soviet Union — escaped in 1980 and was recaptured nearly two years later. He pleaded guilty last year in Boise to the bank robberies and Ryan sentenced him to an additional 25 years in prison.

Thomas Mitchell, a Cour-d'Alene attorney who filed the sentence-reduction motion for Mrs. White, said in supporting documents that she deserved leniency because key testimony by two prosecution witnesses had come into question since her April 1982 trial.

Mitchell also said Mrs. White has avoided the Bannock County, Idaho, area "where her misplaced friendships sprang," and "has conformed more nearly to the conduct society generally expects."

The attorney said Mrs. White has run into problems making arrangements for the care of six juveniles under her custody, and he submitted a report from a Newport physician detailing her medical problems.

The medical report, signed by Dr. David M. Bice, lists a variety of stress-related health problems suffered by the woman. The report described Mrs. White as a "health food nut" who earlier had sought care from a naturopath.

Bar owners say Idahoans want a state lottery

ST. MARIES, Idaho (UPI) — Two bar owners who believe Idaho should have its own lottery say state residents are showing their support for the concept by purchasing tickets for the Washington fundraiser.

In the past three weeks, Jim Spiesman and Ray West have collected about 15,000 losing tickets bought by northern Idahoans. They said recently the stubs represent $15,000 in potential revenue that has been lost to the Gem State.

"Here's a teacher's salary for a year, and we got it all in three weeks," said West, owner of the Midway Bar and Arcade.

Spiesman, owner of the Gem State Club, said he and West will continue collecting the tickets through next fall, when they will haul the load to the governor's office to show how much "voluntary" revenue has been lost.

"I hope we have to have a chip truck to haul them down to Boise," said Spiesman.

The men said they are receiving assistance from beer distributors who have been collecting the Washington stubs from bars throughout northern Idaho. In addition, they said, some Idahoans are mailing them used ticket stubs.

West and Spiesman said they would encourage support for a lottery by promoting use of receipts to fund public education in Idaho.

In addition, they said they have been encouraged by Sen. Vernon Tanner, D-Pocatello, to give counties the option of running their own lotteries to defuse potential opposition from Mormon-dominated southeastern Idaho.

West and Spiesman said they recently sent a letter to most newspapers in the state, addressing such issues as the morality of a lottery.

"Is a lottery, or pull tabs for that matter, any less moral than a church or senior citizens' bingo?" they asked. "In most of these, the revenue goes to a worthy cause. Is our state a worthy cause? We think so."

Spiesman conceded that even if Idaho lawmakers agree to let voters decide whether to amend the state Constitution and permit a state-run lottery, there is no guarantee the measure will become law.

But he added, "If you can show them how much money is being lost to the state, I'll give them something to think about."

Four proposals for a state lottery were introduced in the Legislature during the past session, but only one came up for a vote. It was approved in the Senate, 18-17, but it failed because constitutional amendments require two-thirds approval in both houses.

WPPSS fails to meet bond interest payment

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Washington Public Power Supply System Tuesday missed the deadline for a $15.6 million monthly interest payment on bonds for abandoned nuclear generating plants Nos. 4 and 5.

But the bondholders' trustee, Chemical Bank of New York, couldn't initiate the process of placing WPPSS in default because of a court ruling issued last week.

An attorney for the bank said it would most likely appeal that ruling.

King County Superior Court Judge Joseph Coleman signed an order Friday prohibiting the bank and bondholders from declaring the system in default until a trial on the matter is held.

Coleman is presiding over the case that will determine who must repay most of $2.25 billion in bonds issued to finance WPPSS plants 4 and 5, which were abandoned early last year.

Michael Mines, an attorney for the New York bank, said Tuesday it is "leaning toward" appealing Coleman's ruling in the Washington

Supreme Court. The bank should decide this week, he said.

If default is declared, Chemical Bank could demand payment from WPPSS on the bond debt — which could total more than $7 billion in principle and interest over the next 35 years.

The bank brought suit in King County against the 88 Northwestern utilities participating in plants 4 and 5, seeking an order that they must pay off the construction bonds even though the electrical plants weren't finished. Separate suits are before the courts in Oregon and Idaho, covering utilities in those states.

The WPPSS board decided in mid-May to make an effort to make the monthly bond payment and to stand to set aside $25 million — most of the money in its plant 4 and 5 account — for legal costs. Many of the participating utilities have made their bond payments into an escrow account set up by Coleman, but he has refused to allow WPPSS access to the funds.

Tractor crushes 6-year-old

GLENDALE, Idaho (UPI) — A 6-year-old boy was crushed to death by a tractor on a farm near the southern Idaho town of Glendale, Franklin County authorities said Tuesday.

Sheriff's deputies said Brandon Auger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Auger, died at the scene of the mishap, which occurred on Memorial Day.

The youth was sitting on the wheel of a parked tractor just before the incident, deputies said. They said he was killed when the tractor apparently rolled over him as he dismounted it.

The men said they are receiving assistance from beer distributors who have been collecting the Washington stubs from bars throughout northern Idaho. In addition, they said, some Idahoans are mailing them used ticket stubs.

Waste-fired generator holds uncertain future

SPOKANE (UPI) — It may be awhile before the Washington Water Power Co. begins operating its new $91 million wood waste-fired power plant on a regular basis.

But executives of the Spokane-based utility still defend their decision to build the project, even though it has been criticized by a consultant working for the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission.

"It's hard to say how it's going to turn in 1984," said Robert Henriques, WWP's manager of thermal projects.

"We might not run it as much as we thought we would run it when we decided back in the early days of the feasibility study," Henriques said, "but we're going to need it before it's decommissioned."

The 1979 feasibility study mentioned by Henriques concluded that the project's 42 megawatts of electricity would be needed to meet projected energy deficits between 1983 and 1985. The plant is due to come on line early next year.

In drafting the feasibility study, WWP cited delays in the start of other major power projects in the Northwest.

But as the Washington Public Power Supply System has found out with its ill-fated nuclear power program, energy demand has not increased at a pace predicted even a few years ago.

As it stands now, Henriques said WWP will operate the wood waste plant at Kettle Falls, Wash., on a "when needed" basis.

In a move that caught WWP executives by surprise last September, consultant Bruce Louiselle challenged the utility's decision to build the plant.

"A review of the available information would suggest that the plant is too small, too expensive and its fuel supply and price too uncertain," Louiselle said in his report to the WUTC.

Rescuers scour river for missing rafter

CRAIG, Colo. (UPI) — Colorado and Utah volunteers on foot and in a helicopter searched the rolling waters of the Yampa and Green rivers Tuesday for the body of a Northglenn, Colo., teenager who was tossed from a raft he was riding.

"So far, they have come up with a life jacket he was wearing," said Moffat County Sheriff S.L. Valdez. "It was found about 50 yards west of the Lily Park Bridge. He went in about two or three miles on up — east of there."

Valdez said the missing youth, Joe

Pennetta, 17, was riding the river with three other Denver-area residents Sunday in a pair of rafts when they overturned in the Cross Mountain Canyon, 45 miles west of Craig.

The others in the party — Daryl Kingsolver, 35, of Thornton; Mike Townes, 33, of Englewood; and Johnny Richard Douglas, 15, of Aurora — were able to swim to safety. Kingsolver briefly grabbed hold of Pennetta in the swift-flowing waters, but lost his grip.

"One man (Kingsolver) said he had hold of Pennetta and he slipped out of his grasp," the sheriff said. "He said he couldn't get to him after that."

Valdez has ordered all rivers closed to recreational use in Moffat County after the accident. He said the group began the river run about five miles above the opening of the canyon. He said the spill occurred about one mile inside the canyon walls.

"It really gets rough in there," he said. "There's a lot of white water and the river is running high."

Valdez said diving teams from the National Park Service also were involved in the search, and Unliah County Sheriff's deputies in northeastern Utah were patrolling the Green River. The Yampa flows into the Green at Dinosaur National Park.

The rafting accident was one of at least three in Colorado during US Memorial Day weekend.

One man was killed and another was missing and presumed drowned when two rafts overturned Sunday on the South Platte near Denver. And another man nearly drowned in a rafting accident on the South Platte a day earlier.

$640 million dam expansion ready to operate

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Designed in an era of projected power deficits, the $640 million Bonneville second powerhouse will be dedicated Wednesday at a time of an energy glut in the Pacific Northwest.

The powerhouse, capable of generating 538 megawatts, will join a network of federal dams on the Columbia River system that produce about half of the hydroelectric power generated in the United States, said Norman P. Tolonen, Columbia River projects coordinator for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Construction on the second powerhouse, which will more than double the current 514-megawatt output of the original dam built in 1938, began in 1974. The additional power will be used to meet peak demands.

It is among the last large-scale dam expansions or new dams to be considered for the Columbia River system, which encompasses all the rivers that flow into the Columbia, including the Snake and Willamette rivers.

"As far as any additional new powerhouse studies, there is one being considered for the McNary Dam and I think that's the only one," Tolonen said.

Boxing legend Jack Dempsey dies at 87

NEW-YORK (UPI) — Jack Dempsey, one of America's most popular sports figures who dominated the boxing world during the Roaring 20s, died Tuesday at his Manhattan apartment, police said. He was 87.

Dempsey, who held the heavyweight title from 1919-1926, was found by his wife, Deanna, about 4 p.m. in the bedroom of their apartment.

The "Manassa Mauler" had been in failing health for the past two years, and was hospitalized April 11, 1982 to have a pacemaker implanted. Police said the medical examiner ruled that Dempsey died of natural causes. Funeral arrangements remained incomplete.

The former champ lived quietly with his wife, and was often seen walking with a cane around his East Side neighborhood and inside his apartment building.

"He was always stopped on the street, and was extremely recognizable with his cane," said neighbor Rubin Adler.

"One day someone was helping him down the stairs and I waited. The other person said I'd better go on ahead, but I said 'No, I think I'd still better duck when he's around.' He smiled at that," said Adler.

Another neighbor said Dempsey and his wife were "quite active," and tenants on his floor often caught glimpses of him "doing his exercises in the hall with his therapist."

"He was always very polite and friendly, though he was more tactful than in years past," said the neighbor.

Dempsey became one of the more popular champions and after Babe Ruth, perhaps his greatest worldwide sports figure in the era before World War II.

"Jack Dempsey was perhaps the man who sculpted the golden age of sports," said Bert Sugar, editor and publisher of Ring Magazine. "Before Babe Ruth hit his height, before there even was a Bobby Jones. Sixty years later, he was still the greatest, regardless of what Muhammad Ali says."

Dempsey was born in Manassa, Colo., on June 24, 1895, the son of a Mormon school teacher. Named William Harrison Dempsey, he adopted the nickname of his idol, Jack Dempsey, another boxer, when he decided to fight.

Dempsey beat Jess Willard to become the champion in Toledo, Ohio, on July 4, 1919, and went on to earn such titles as the "Manassa Mauler," the "Killer" and the "Jungle Beast."

Dempsey fought boxing's first million-dollar gate against Georges Carpentier, a French fighter, in a fight billed as the "Battle of the Century" at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, N.J. He lost the crown in an equally famed bout with Gene Tunney in Philadelphia.

The Tunney-Dempsey rematch at Soldier Field in Chicago before another million-dollar gate known as the "Long Count Fight," and generating one of sports most hotly debated issues.

Philadelphia's Moses Malone (2) confronts Magic Johnson (32) and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar

Sixers just won't be denied crown

By JAN HUBBARD
Dallas Morning News

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — At times, the task seemed impossible, even though they had overcome similar obstacles only two days earlier.

For nearly three quarters Tuesday night, the Philadelphia 76ers played catchup with the Los Angeles Lakers. At one time, the Lakers led by 16 points.

But the Sixers slowly cut the lead, played the same tough second-half defense they played all during the series, and got two key plays from Julius Erving, the Doctor, to win the 1983 NBA championship series.

The Sixers defeated the Lakers, 115-108, Tuesday night as a sellout crowd of 17,505 watched their Lakers relinquish the championship in unprecedented style.

Never in NBA history has a team won the title one year, then lost in four straight games the next.

But the Lakers were almost helpless Tuesday — especially in the second half. Los Angeles scored only 43 points in the second half and watched as Erving and Moses Malone made key plays down the stretch to bring the title to the 76ers for the first time since 1967.

Malone had 24 points and 23 rebounds while Erving had 21 points, including seven straight near the end of the game.

With the Lakers leading 106-104, Erving stole a pass from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, then sped in for a dunk to tie the game for the first time since early in the second quarter.

Magic Johnson, who had been so brilliant, then hurt the Lakers by missing one of two free throws. After a 24-second violation by the Sixers, Abdul-Jabbar missed a hook shot, and Erving scored again after being fouled by Johnson. That gave the Sixers a 109-107 lead.

Abdul-Jabbar made one of two free throws before Erving sank an 18-footer. Malone finished it off in grand style, smashing through a dunk that ended the season and the Lakers' reign as champions.

The Lakers had to play under difficult conditions. Both Norm Nixon and Bob McAdoo missed the game with injuries. The Lakers were in such bad shape that Mike McGee, who last saw action sometime around the turn of the century, entered the game with four minutes left in the first quarter.

By the time 9:30 was left in the half, McGee, Mark Landberger and Dwight Jones — three non-important members on the Western Conference championship team — had been playing time. Not only that, but they were in the game at the same time.

The Lakers, however, were not harmed. Considering the results of the first three games of the series, what more harm could be done by any member of the bench? L.A., in fact, got quality minutes from the supporting cast in the first half, which is why it managed to keep a lead, even while the starters were resting.

With slightly less than seven minutes left in the first half, the Lakers survived consecutive baskets by Malone, who got offensive rebounds twice in the first half (once after he missed a free throw) to score four points. That brought the Sixers, who had trailed for all of the second quarter, to within three, 42-39, with 6:45 left in the half.

Moses smiles on NBA title

By DAN BARREIRO
Dallas Morning News

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — By the time Moses Malone got back to the Philadelphia 76ers' locker room Tuesday night, the floor — and many of his teammates — already were soaked in champagne.

They saved the biggest bottle for their center, for the man who won the Most Valuable Player award for the 1983 playoffs. He took a big sip. "Smile!" a cameraman shouted. "Act happy, at least."

He smiled. And he didn't have to act at all. Malone and the Sixers had just beaten the Los Angeles Lakers, 115-108, at the Forum to complete a four-game sweep and win the NBA title. They had come back from a 16-point deficit. "When we got it down to one," he said, "you could sort of see them lighten up. It was like they could see the train coming again."

The defending world champion Lakers never really knew what hit them. Malone scored 24 points and grabbed 23 rebounds. Julius Erving scored 21 points, including some of the most important in the game. Andrew Toney scored 23 points and Maurice Cheeks scored 20 and ran the show.

"I think this is a great team," said Bobby Jones. "What was really great about this team was it never got rattled. No matter what the circumstances, we kept coming back and coming back."

Malone had promised that if the Sixers didn't wrap up the series

Tuesday, they'd finish off the Lakers Thursday in Philadelphia. "There is no way they're going to win the series," he said. "No way we're going to lose four in a row. How are we gonna lose four in a row?"

But down the line he and the Sixers wanted to end it Tuesday. By doing so, they finished with the best playoff record (12-1) in NBA history.

"I think we proved what kind of team we are," said Malone, who in the series averaged 25.8 points, 11.8 rebounds and 3.3 minutes. "When we played New York in a four-game Philly sweep, they were just talking about staying close. When we played Milwaukee (4-1 Philly victory), they just talked about staying close. And after we jumped on the Lakers, it was like they were talking the same way."

Unknown Frenchman ends Connors' dreams of a French Open title

By MORLEY MILLER
United Press International

PARIS — Christophe Roger-Vasselin stunned American top seed Jimmy Connors and Yannick Noah upset third-seeded Czechoslovak Ivan Lendl Tuesday to provide the host nation with a day to celebrate in the quarterfinals of the $1.1 million French Open Tennis Championships.

Roger-Vasselin, a lowly 130th in the ATP rankings, scored a 6-4, 6-7, 7-6 victory over 36-year-old Connors, who was chasing the only Grand Slam still to elude him, on the slow red clay of the Roland Garros Stadium.

Noah, the No. 6 seed, later dispatched Lendl, 7-6, 7-5, 7-6, to earn a semifinal meet with his compatriot and boost French hopes of winning the title for the first time since Marcel Bernard's triumph in 1946.

But Noah nearly blew his golden chance, missing two match points at 5-2 in the third set and losing five successive games before clinching victory in the fourth set.

An all-American semifinal was set up among the women between four-time winner Chris Evert Lloyd and third-seeded Andrea Jaeger, last year's losing finalist. Evert No. 2 in the seedings but now the favorite after the defeat of defending champion Martina Navratilova, came from behind to edge eighth-seeded Czechoslovakian Hana Mandlikova, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. Jaeger, reaching the semis for the third consecutive year, had no trouble in scoring a runaway 6-2, 6-2 victory over unranked fellow-American Gretchen Rush, the amateur who entered the tournament on a wild card.

The American duo are the only remaining women's seeds, with Britain's Jo Durie playing the other semifinal Thursday against 1977 champion Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia.

Connors, bidding to land the only Grand Slam title to have eluded him, had only himself to blame for his defeat, giving the match to his 25-year-old opponent with a stream of unforced errors.

The 6-4 Frenchman, an untidy player to watch as he scrambled around the red clay court like a disjointed spider, was content to keep the ball in play and wait for Connors to make mistakes.

Jerome's Pat Hoke to leave

JEROME — Pat Hoke, who took the Jerome basketball program to within a step of the top in Idaho's A-2 classification, has resigned to become an assistant coach at University of Idaho.

Hoke, who had been rumored leaving for the past four weeks, made it official Tuesday morning.

He will join the staff of incoming Vandal Coach Bill Trumbo as the part-time assistant, leaving the opportunity to complete work on his masters.

"I had a couple of other things on tap," Hoke said about the earlier rumors. "This developed late in the running and might be the best opportunity for me."

"I leave with mixed emotions with what we've done with the program in the last six years. We've brought it from the bottom to one of the top A-2 programs in the state. It's hard but it's something that career-wise I felt I needed to do."

"I feel I'm leaving the program in pretty good shape. There is some talent coming back next year and it's always hard to leave while you're on top. But, this time, you have to leave because nobody's looking at you when the program is down."

Jerome officials expressed their thanks Hoke for his work in the program and noted the job will be open to all applicants this morning.

Baseball says it 'monitors' players

By BARRY HORN
Dallas Morning News

NEW YORK — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office Tuesday acknowledged it has hired security agents to monitor players' off-field activities in each of the 26 major league cities, but denied they would spy on players.

"They are there to monitor gambling, scalping and ballpark security," said Chuck Adams, Kuhn's assistant information director. "They can also handle other specific requests for investigations this office might have."

Other "specific investigations" include drugs, Adams said. Adams denied a Major League Baseball Players Association claim that the security representatives would engage in covert activity and act as "spies."

"There is nothing covert about this," said Adams, who said the NFL and NBA also have similar security arrangements. "The representatives are encouraged to make themselves known to the players. This is not a cloak-and-dagger operation."

Adams said the commissioner's office has been working to establish such a program since last year.

before the revelations of Baltimore Colt quarterback Art Schlichter's gambling activities — but could not say when the security agents first started work.

Kenneth Moffett, executive director of the players association, sent a memo, dated May 17, to player representatives on each team informing them the commissioner's office had hired the security agents. The memo, posted Monday in some clubhouses, called the hirings an "outrageous violation of players' rights to privacy."

Former major league shortstop Mark Belanger, a special assistant to Moffett, said Tuesday he and Moffett discussed the matter with Kuhn last week.

"We expressed our concerns and subsequently wanted to get from him the status of the operation," Belanger said. "We were not really satisfied."

Belanger, however, said there was little the players association could do.

"We really can't do anything about it other than let players know about it," he said. "The commissioner is charged with protecting the integrity of the game. That is a very broad statement. If, in fact, all they are concerned with is gambling, it is considered within his powers."

NCAA track may have new kingpins

HOUSTON (UPI) — The NCAA track and field championships open Wednesday with the Washington State Cougars and SMU Mustangs expected to challenge for the title which the Texas-El Paso Miners have held for the last four years.

Qualifying will be held in 16 events Wednesday — nine men's and seven women's — and the final of the competition will be unveiled as well.

Just as the sun is setting on what should be a sultry day, the women's 10,000-meter run will be held — the only final that will be run off during the opening two days of the four-day meet.

In the men's competition Washington State will send its corps of Kenyan distance runners — headed by Peter Koehn — against SMU's beery crew of weight men.

"I definitely think Washington State is the team to beat," said SMU coach Ted McLaughlin, whose team won the NCAA indoor championship earlier this year in Detroit.

"It's sure not us, Washington State, has too much ability in the distance races."

SMU will rely heavily on a dominance of the hammer throw, an event the Mustangs' Richard Olsen has won the last two years.

Qualifying in the hammer will be the first event on Wednesday's program.

The meet will be hosted by the University of Houston at Robertson Stadium — a facility that has been upgraded in recent years. But not all the work done has been to McLaughlin's satisfaction.

"The (hammer) circle is very, very slow," said McLaughlin, a former assistant coach at Texas-El Paso. "Hammer throwers like a fast surface. Discus throwers like a slow surface and both events will be held in the same circle."

"After the circle was finished they decided to make it slower. They put a form of acid on it, which tends to eat up the surface. Our throwers have been down to work on it several times. The surface crumbles now under your feet. It's like throwing on sand."

If Washington State and SMU both slumber, the Alabama Crimson Tide (strong in the sprints) could pull off the upset. Texas-El Paso, which since 1974 has won a dozen indoor and outdoor NCAA championships, still has a strong team, but with standout distance runner Suleiman Nyambui having finally run out of eligibility the Miners do not appear to have the points to win it all.

In the women's division, UCLA, Tennessee and Nebraska should be among the chief combatants.

Tennessee will depend heavily on hurdlers Denita Fitzgerald and Sharifia Barksdale along with middle distance runners Joetta Clark and Cathy Rattray while Nebraska is expected to do well in the sprints with Merlene Ottey.

UCLA, however, is loaded with depth throughout the meet and ranks as the narrow favorite.

Other than the hammer, men's qualifying will be held Wednesday in the long jump, high jump, discus, 400-meter relay, 300 meters, 400-meter hurdles, 200 meters and 3,000-meter steeplechase.

Gateway loses first of season

TWIN FALLS — Royal Lanes tightened up the A league in the Twin Falls slowpitch competition Tuesday night when it handed Gateway Trailer its first loss of the season 5-0.

Meanwhile, defending champion Deep Creek Golf Club, getting homers from Ken Petersen and Kevin Nelson, closed in by blanking Cook Pest Control 14-0 and Hawkins Kawasaki dropped Sewer-Water Specialty-Windbreak 9-4.

In C play, Sherwood's Arctic Circle downed Cammerlaid 8-5 and Idaho Power had the same count against Miller Beer. Loper Systems beat Blue Lakes 6-9-4.

In women's play, Norm's Cafe slipped past Hobco 7-6 but after that it was a matter of time.

Two Bandito whipped Idaho First 20-1. Windbreak hammered Bright Farms 24-1. Donnelley's-Latham Motor tanked Payless Drug 14-1. Snake River blanked North's Chuckwagon 12-0 and in a B-league game, the Moose handled Idaho Frozen Foods 25-6.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Silence, when nothing need be said, is the eloquence of discretion." — Christian N. Boyer

Those who can learn to keep quiet about their side suit strength may not need to play their best. Those who tell the opponents what they hold must fall back on excellent play.

West leads spades and South ruffs the third round. South can afford one club loser—but he cannot deal with—(two—What's his best play to make his game?)

Had South jumped to four hearts over two no trump, he might rattle off five trump winners in hopes of a wayward club discard. Unfortunately, South has already told the opponents how to defeat East will fearlessly—blank—his diamond king to keep his club suit intact and this line of play is destined for one down (West signals high-low in diamonds to help East discard).

Since playing for an error will not work, South must play for a legitimate make. After ruffing the third spade, South should lead a low club, without touching trumps. South wins the next lead, plays one high trump and then plays the ace and king of clubs. Luckily, East has both the clubs, and trumps and South can ruff his fourth club in dummy to score the game.

Note that South cannot afford to play a trump early. East will take the simplified certificates.

You never again have to settle for confusing, inflexible certificate savings plans. Your old friend Ben offers you long-term certificates, in two easy steps:

First, you choose your own term: Any number of years, months—even days—between 2 1/2 and 10 years. (Why not pick an easy date to remember, like your birthday?) That's when your certificate will mature. You also can customize every certificate with a special descriptive name, instead of a number!

Second, decide how much you want to invest...any amount from $100 to $100,000. Then, depending on the length of term you've set, you'll earn from 9.5% ~~and~~ ^{to} interest for that entire period. Guaranteed.

What could be simpler? Ben's long-term savings certificates, on your term, not ours! It's as easy as one, two...at your nearest office of The Benj. Franklin!

Summer Fruit Pies: Cool 'n Easy

When summer is at its hottest, desserts ought to be at their coolest. So isn't it nice to know that there are almost an endless number of cool desserts that can be made using summer's array of colorful, delicious fruit?

Among the most noteworthy of all summer's cool desserts are the easy-to-make no bake pies that combine fresh fruit with cream, sour cream, sherbet, cream cheese or yogurt.

Fortunately, fresh fruit is available all summer long. All the other ingredients needed to create a fruit pie masterpiece can be found on any grocer's shelves. Start with a prepared graham cracker or butter-flavored pie crust. Delicately flavored, they're versatile, easy-to-use and complement fresh fruit fillings.

Corn syrup is another easy-to-use ingredient, and a favorite companion to summer fruits. It enhances natural fruit flavors, adds smoothness to the pies and, for many, gives a special sheen. All of the following fruit pie fillings were developed for spooning directly into these handy crumb crusts.

Another advantage is that all of these pies can, and should be, made in advance of mealtime. They are meant to be served after chilling for several hours—when the hostess is at her cool, calm and most collected best.

Frosty Fruit Pie

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 1/2 cups cubed cantaloupe or honeydew melon or peeled peaches or whole strawberries
- 3/4 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 1 Keebler Ready-Crust Butter-Flavored pie crust

In small saucepan sprinkle gelatin over milk. Stir over low heat until dissolved. Place in blender container with melon and corn syrup; cover. Blend on high speed 30 seconds or until smooth. Pour into 9 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Cover; freeze overnight. Soften slightly at room temperature, about 15 minutes. Spoon into large bowl. With mixer at low speed, beat until smooth, but not melted. Spoon into crust. Cover; freeze about 4 hours or until firm. If desired, garnish with fresh fruit. Makes 8 servings.

Peach Cheese Pie

- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1/3 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker pie crust
- 2 1/2 cups thinly sliced peeled peaches

In small bowl with mixer at medium speed beat cream cheese, corn syrup and vanilla until smooth. Spread 3/4 cup of the cheese mixture on bottom and up sides of crust. Refrigerate at least 2 hours. Toss peach slices with Pineapple Glaze. Spoon into crust. Garnish with remaining cheese mixture. Refrigerate several hours or overnight until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Pineapple Glaze

In small saucepan stir together 2 teaspoons corn starch, 1/2 cup pineapple juice and 3 tablespoons Karo light corn syrup until smooth. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Pour into bowl; cover surface with waxed paper. Cool completely. Makes about 2/3 cup.

Strawberry-Blueberry Tarts

- 2 pints (about) strawberries, divided
- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- 1/2 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 1 cup blueberries
- 6 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker tart crusts
- 1/3 cup heavy cream, whipped

Mash 1 1/4 cups strawberries. Measure 3/4 cup. In small saucepan stir together corn starch and corn syrup until smooth. Stir in mashed strawberries; stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Strain. Cover; cool to lukewarm. In small bowl toss together blueberries and 2 tablespoons glaze. Spoon some of the blueberry mixture into tart crusts just to cover bottom of tart crusts. Arrange whole strawberries on top of blueberries. Spoon remaining glaze over berries. Fill in with remaining blueberry mixture. Refrigerate at least 3 hours or until set. Garnish with whipped cream. Makes 6.

Glazed Fresh Fruit Tarts

- 1 1/2 tablespoons corn starch
- 3/4 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 cups assorted cut-up fruit, such as blueberries, grape halves, diced apples, peach or strawberry slices, diced pears, or orange sections
- 6 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker tart crusts

In 2-quart saucepan stir together corn starch, orange juice and corn syrup until smooth. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in lemon rind and juice. Turn into bowl; cover surface with waxed paper. Cool completely. Fold in fruit until well coated. Mound fruit mixture in crusts. Refrigerate several hours or until set. Makes 6.

Lemon Chiffon Yogurt Pie

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1/2 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 container (8 oz.) plain yogurt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker pie crust

In 2-quart saucepan sprinkle gelatin over water. Stir in egg yolks, corn syrup, lemon rind and juice. Stirring constantly, cook over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. In large bowl stir yogurt until smooth. Stirring constantly, pour corn syrup mixture into yogurt until well blended and smooth. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, about 1 hour or until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. In small bowl with mixer at high speed beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold into yogurt mixture. Pour into crust. Refrigerate several hours or overnight until set. If desired, garnish with whipped cream, lemon slices and fresh mint leaves. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Frozen Strawberry-Peach Pie

- 1/2 cup sliced strawberries
- 1/2 cup sliced peeled peaches
- 3/4 cup Karo light corn syrup, divided
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker pie crust

In blender container place strawberries, peaches and 1/2 cup of the corn syrup; cover. Blend on high speed 30 seconds or until smooth. In small bowl with mixer at high speed beat cream. Gradually beat in remaining 1/4 cup corn syrup until stiff. Fold in fruit mixture until well blended. Pour into crust. Freeze several hours or overnight until firm. Before serving, let stand 10 minutes at room temperature. If desired, garnish with additional whipped cream and fruit. Makes 8 servings.

Sour Cream and Fruit Pie

(Not Shown)

- 3 tablespoons corn starch
- 1 cup milk
- 2/3 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 1/2 cups fresh blueberries or chopped peeled peaches
- 1 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker pie crust

In 2-quart saucepan stir together corn starch and milk until smooth. Stir in corn syrup. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. With wire whisk gently stir in sour cream until well blended. Fold in fruit. Spoon into crust. If desired, garnish with additional fruit. Refrigerate several hours or overnight until set. Makes 8 servings.

Strawberry Mousse Pie

(Not Shown)

- 1 cup sliced strawberries
- 2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
- 4 tablespoons cold water
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1/2 cup Karo light corn syrup
- 2 drops red food color (optional)
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 Keebler Ready-Crust Graham Cracker pie crust

Place strawberries in blender container; cover. Blend on high speed 30 seconds or until smooth. In 2-quart saucepan sprinkle gelatin over water. Stir in egg yolks, corn syrup and strawberry puree. Stirring constantly, cook over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Stir in food color. Turn into large bowl. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, about 45 minutes or until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. In small bowl with mixer at high speed beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold into strawberry mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon into crust. Refrigerate 4 hours or until firm. If desired, garnish with whipped cream and strawberries. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

REXBURG — The secrets to success in growing melons, cucumbers and squash in the Magic Valley are the right choice of varieties and plastic mulch.

Variety choice is particularly critical with melons to mature fruit in early summer. "Early season" and "cool season" varieties are best for growing weather. Although almost all cucumber and squash varieties will mature some fruit, the earlier and the more fruit they produce, the more new varieties will produce more fruit of better quality.

Watermelons or cantaloupes with a rating of less than 75 days will not mature any significant amount of fruit. The three watermelons which have performed best for me are Yellow Doll, Sweet Baby and Sugar Belle. Most of the varieties will produce "one baby" as part of the name are early.

Other early watermelons which I have grown successfully include Golden Midget, New Hampshire Midget, Sugar Hybrid, Royal Peacock and Family Size.

For early cantaloupes are Early Northern Queen and Earlswort. Other successful early varieties include Alaska, Far North, Sweet N-Early, Sweet Granite and Minnesota Midget. I have seen very few varieties which have been successful in our area. Franklin and Kozak.

In slices of cucumbers, the extra long burpless varieties are a great improvement. In my opinion, my favorite are Green Knight, Tasty Green (also sold as Burpless), Sweet Success, and Euro-American.

For pickling, I like All-American award winner for this year. It is also only of excellent quality but is not very disease resistant. Saladin is also a favorite pickling cucumber. Also very good are County Fair and Liberty.

For eating, I like the pig-pen squash selection: Any summer squash will do well. Two of my favorite new varieties are Peter Pan, a light green zucchini type, and Gourmet Globe, a round zucchini type. You can harvest a lot of wild cucumber from any variety in 30 days or less.

I often start some melon and winter squash seed inside. It only takes two weeks for cucumber and squash plants to be big enough for transplanting and mid-June is an excellent time to plant outside.

The cucumbers, which I seeded in June 17 and transplanted in June 21 last year, performed the best of any I have ever grown. Melons need three weeks from seedling to transplanting. Green houses and nurseries sometimes have started plants for sale, also.

Plastic mulch will greatly speed growth and increase yields of all these vegetables. For the ground is all prepared and fertilized, make a furrow. Makes holes with a knife or trowel at two foot intervals and place a plant or several seeds in the soil. Make sure that the slope is toward the holes for easier watering.

Thin, 1/4 or 2 millimeters, plastic garden mulch is available from many garden and hardware stores. Any ground covered with plastic will speed growth the most, but black plastic prevents weed growth.

Lime Coconut Cooler. a combination of coconut and lime, is good hot weather beverage

Lime cooler evokes tropics

SEATTLE — Bring a little of the tropics to your table with Lime-Coconut Cooler.

An exotic combination of coconut and lime in a creamy milk base, this hot weather beverage is sure to evoke the spirit of the tropics.

Quick to prepare, the ingredients for Lime-Coconut Cooler are simply whirled together with ice cubes in a blender or food processor, then served immediately. Bamboo sieved pieces of coconut and lime flowers will enhance the tropical mood of this delicious beverage.

Juicy and seedless, fresh Florida limes are ideal for a variety of cooling summer beverages. Kids of all ages will enjoy the tangy limeade. Or serve all-glassed-of-lead tea or sparkling mineral water with generous wedges of juicy, fresh limes.

Limes can be a light, refreshing addition to summer breakfasts: too! Lime-Breakfast-Drink, a cheerful "nog" of milk and egg, flavored with Lumpy lime, needs only the addition of a dash of sugar, toasted English muffins, and wedges of fresh melon to round out the menu.

Low in sodium and calories, fresh Florida limes are an excellent source of vitamin C and also supply potassium, calcium, and healthy fiber. Add to the diet. Squeeze fresh limes over fruits, salads and entrees for a low-sodium, low-calorie flavor boost.

LIME-COCOONUT COOLER

1½ cups cold milk
2 teaspoons each fresh Florida lime juice and sugar
1 teaspoon whole germ
½ teaspoon grated Florida lime peel
Combine all ingredients except lime peel in blender or food processor. Blend until smooth. Garnish with lime peel. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings.

Idea tested

NEW-YORK (UPI)—Several restaurant chains are testing the breakfast buffet concept popular in hotels for many years.

An article in a recent issue of Restaurant Business magazine says the chains are trying to determine if such buffets will boost sales and customer traffic during the morning meal period.

The article by Ralph J. Raffio says one chain's test of an all-you-eat-all-day breakfast was so successful that all company stores and a majority of franchised units were providing the service by fiscal year-end in October, 1982. A company advisor told the magazine bar costs now account for 75 percent of the breakfast sales.

"Breakfast cost is generally higher for the breakfast bar in most restaurants," Raffio says.

Melons refreshing

By ROBERT W. STRUBE
Chicago Sun-Times

Melons are the most refreshing fruits on Earth. But are you familiar with all the different kinds?

Few of us can tell a Persian melon from a cantaloupe or a honeydew. Watermelon is practically in a class by itself for size and shape. But cantaloupe resemble the Persian, but they also have their own characteristics. Desirable cantaloupes are covered thickly with netting that stands out like whiplcord from the background, which should be slightly golden. The nose should be important. The cantaloupe developed from there. There should be a definite cavity at the stem end with no stem attached. This is a good sign of maturity.

Cantaloupes are an excellent source of minerals and vitamins A and C. They generally need a few days at room temperature to ripen at home. Ripe cantaloupes should be refrigerated.

Cantaloupes were originally called, muskmelon, and belong to the same family as the cucumber and gherkins, which in turn are members of the cucurbitaceae family. Muskmelon was named because of the delightful aroma of the ripe fruit. "Musk" is from the Persian meaning a kind of perfume. "Melon" from the French or Italian is derived from the Latin "Melopepo", meaning "apple shaped melon". The oldest recorded record of this melon dates back to 2400 B.C. one of the fruits depicted in an illustration of funeral offerings in an Egyptian tomb of that date, has been identified by some as a muskmelon.

Cantaloupes are a dieter's delight, with only 60 calories in a half of a medium-size melon.

Melon and Cheese Salad

1 cantaloupe
2 cups cooked chicken, cut up
1 cup diagonally sliced celery cup sliced radishes
Blue cheese dressing (recipe follows)
Celery leaves

Pare cantaloupe and cut into 4 crosswise slices. Remove seeds and cut out the middle cantaloupe rings to leave a ½-inch ring. Reserve cut-out melon: In a large bowl, combine reserved melon cut into cubes, chicken, celery and radishes. Mix with dressing, cheese dressing. Cover and chill for several hours.

To serve, place melon rings on salad plates and spoon chicken salad in middle of each ring. Garnish with celery leaves. Serves 4.

Dressing

½ cup sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
2 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
Mix all ingredients in medium bowl.

Dinnerware resembles real china

CLINTON, N.J. (UPI)—Dinnerware that looks like translucent porcelain—but behaves like freezer-to-oven-to-tableware is the latest product from an innovative manufacturer in Clinton.

The first six Occasions China patterns were selected after market research by the company's design customers and their dinnerware preferences. The patterns range from pure white to banded, textured or floral.

A five-piece place setting—dinner and salad plates, mug and 6-ounce soup and salad bowl—has suggested the company's initial price range. Serving pieces include a large platter that can double as a place mat, a 1½-quart covered casserole, an oval covered casserole and an 8-ounce fruit bowl.

They always indicate typical customers for such products are dual career couples or career-oriented singles, 25-45 years old, with incomes over $20,000 and up per person. They are people who like to dine at home and who value the lasting quality of products that are convenient and require little storage space. They shop mainly in department and specialty stores.

They told researchers they want products that combine fashion and function, represent confidence and are easy to use. They also said they are used for special occasions, but are more versatile than traditional china.

Simple yet delicious buffet menu starts with hearty soup, allows hostess to enjoy guests.

Buffet style serving popular

NORWALK, Conn. — Serving buffet style is fast growing in popularity. It's an easy way to entertain and, with a little planning, a nice new balance between elegance and simplicity can be achieved.

The polished sideboard with its gleaming silver, stacks of pretty plates and bouquet of flowers form an elegant background for the food which should be simple enough for guests to serve themselves easily.

Even the simplest menu can satisfy today's requirement for light nourishing food, as shown in this buffet suggestion. For starters, serve a tureen of Avgolemono, a hearty and popular Greek soup. This recipe adds an exotic touch of curry which gives it a lively, spirited flavor.

CURRIED AVGOLEMONO SOUP

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon curry powder
3 cans, 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. size, chicken broth
3 large eggs, beaten
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fresh-squeezed lemon juice lemon slices and chopped parsley for garnish

In a saucepan, saute onion in butter until onion is soft. Stir in flour and curry powder and cook 1 minute longer, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and gradually stir in chicken broth. Cook over moderately high heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a simmer. Beat about 1 cup broth mixture into eggs; add lemon juice, return egg mixture to saucepan with broth and cook over low heat about 2 or 3 minutes longer.

Pour into soup tureen and garnish with lemon slices and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

CUCUMBER SALAD WITH LETTUCE AND TOMATO
2 cucumbers, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cider vinegar
2 tablespoons granulated sugar

$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground pepper
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup thinly sliced onion
Romaine lettuce leaves tomato slices
Toss cucumber with salt and let stand 30 minutes. Drain well and press out liquid. Mix cucumbers with cider vinegar, sugar, pepper and onion; let stand 2 hours in refrigerator. Drain and arrange on a bed of lettuce leaves. Garnish with tomato slices. Makes 6 servings.

Create new cooling desserts

When the weather turns hot, ice cream and sherbet begin to look tantalizing. They provide good nourishment and at the same time have cooling attributes. In addition these frozen sweets can also be turned into glorious desserts fit for serving the President.

Here are a few fancy ice cream desserts which you can easily make and serve after any type meal.

SHERBERRY FREEZE
 $\frac{1}{2}$ pint each orange, lemon and raspberry sherbets
1 package, 10 ounces, frozen strawberries, slightly thawed
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup orange-flavored liqueur
Into 6 wide-mouthed, stemmed wine glasses or dessert dishes, scoop a portion of each of the orange, lemon and raspberry sherbets. Put filled dishes into freezer until ready to serve.

To serve, puree together the thawed, frozen strawberries and orange liqueur. Take glasses from freezer; pour some strawberry sauce over the top and serve immediately. Make dessert more delectable by serving it on a small salad plate with a dolly and a sugar cookie alongside. Garnish tops with a fresh strawberry and sprig of fresh mint, if desired.

MUD PIE
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup melted butter or margarine
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup crumbled chocolate wafers
1 pint each vanilla and chocolate and coffee ice cream
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped nuts
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chocolate syrup
1 cup heavy cream
2 teaspoons sugar

A touch more chocolate syrup and chopped nuts to garnish top of pie. Preheat oven to 350° F. In a 9-inch pie plate, combine melted butter or margarine, sugar and crumbled wafers; mix well. Press mixture against the bottom and the sides of pie plate. Bake 5 minutes. Remove crust from oven; cool and then chill. Let ice cream soften slightly at room temperature. Do not let them melt.

Alternate portions of each ice cream along with a sprinkle of nuts and drizzles of chocolate syrup until everything is piled tightly into the pie crust. Whip the heavy cream with the sugar until it stands in soft peaks. Spread over the top of the pie. Drizzle chocolate syrup and sprinkle nuts over the top. Freeze at least 20 minutes before cutting and serving. To serve, use a sharp knife which has been dipped into hot water. Makes 6 generous servings.

ICE CREAM CAKE PATRICIA
1 store-bought sponge cake, sliced crosswise into three equal layers
1 pint strawberry ice cream slightly softened

Willetta Warberg
On food

$\frac{1}{2}$ pint more heavy cream, whipped separately a few hours later
1 pint, fresh strawberries, hulled, rinsed and mixed with sugar and water to make thick sauce.

Into a 9-inch springform pan, put a layer of spongecake. In a mixing bowl, combine slightly softened strawberry ice cream with first half of whipped cream. Spread $\frac{1}{2}$ of this ice cream mixture over layer of sponge cake; sprinkle remaining ice cream mixture over second sponge cake layer; sprinkle with more crushed macaroons and a little brandy or rum. Top with third spongecake whipped remaining half pint of heavy cream; drizzle strawberry sauce over top and let it run down sides of cake. Sprinkle with a little more crumbled macaroons. Serve immediately. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

ICE CREAM CHOCOLATE CUPS
6 paper baking cups placed inside muffin pans
6 squares semisweet or sweet chocolate

Your favorite ice cream
Toasted, flake coconut for garnish
Grated semisweet or sweet chocolate for garnish

Melt the chocolate squares in top of a double boiler over boiling water. When almost melted, remove the chocolate from heat and stir quickly until it is totally melted. Using a small spoon, drizzle the chocolate around the insides of the paper baking cups until the chocolate is firm. (If needed, chocolate coating if necessary, keep chilled until ready to use.)

To use, peel off paper from chocolate. Fill chocolate cups with small scoops of your favorite ice cream. Sprinkle tops with toasted flake coconut and grated chocolate. Makes 6 servings.

Eat broccoli all year

By ROBERT W. STRUBE
Chicago Sun-Times

In 1991, times were available solely from June to August, avocados from July to December and broccoli from November through May, with a small amount in September and October.

Now they are available all year. Progress has not only affected what we eat, but when we eat it as well.

Broccoli is one of the oldest vegetables. The Greeks and Romans were eating broccoli more than 2,000 years ago. The tasty and versatile vegetable captured America's attention in the 1920s.

The peak broccoli season runs from October through May. Serve it raw in a salad or with party dips. Serve whole, cooked stalks with melted butter and freshly ground pepper. Pan-fry broccoli, stir-fry, boil, bake, steam, chop or mash it. For best results, steam or cook as briefly as possible in a small amount of water to preserve the texture and conserve broccoli's many nutrients.

When you select a head of broccoli, look at it and smell it. The head should give out the test smell of a green vegetable. It should be compact, firm and dark green or purplish, depending on the variety. The buds should be tightly closed.

Broccoli Chowder:
2 (12 1/2-oz.) cans chicken broth
1 bunch fresh broccoli, washed and trimmed, leaves removed 3 cups milk
1 cup chopped, cooked ham
1 cup half-and-half
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese
1/2 cup margarine or butter
Pour chicken broth into a large saucepan. Add broccoli, bring to a boil, cover and cook for 10 to 15 minutes, until tender. Remove broccoli from the broth; drain and place on cutting board to cool. To broth add milk, ham, half-and-half, Swiss cheese and butter. Chop broccoli and add to the chowder base. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Yields 2 1/2 quarts of chowder.

Alcoholic beverage firms launch refund offer campaign

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Did you hear the story about the "Ugly Refunder"? Her husband asked how many Old Grand-Dad labels she had collected, and her response was "897 proofs."

No joke. We refunders had better be on the alert because it seems as if the alcoholic beverage industry has launched a massive campaign of refund offers in our direction. In the last three months I have seen a $1 Romarco Ruff offer, $1 back on Fleischmann's Gig and a $3 refund on Irish Mist.

If you are a beer drinker you haven't been forgotten. Recent refund offers include those for Old Milwaukee, Schmidt's and Black Label Beer. But, the greatest number of offers have come from the wine industry. Obviously, they know that refunders are more sophisticated and appreciate the finer things like $3 back from Taylor Champagne; $1.50 from Blue Nun; $1.50 from Inglenook; a $1.50 refund from Lancers ... and well even partake of Chinese delicacies to get a $1.50 refund on Wan Fu wine.

"Why the sudden surge in refunds of the grape?" I asked Ron Tommasini, national brand manager for Cella wines.

"A few years ago, the federal government changed rules that prohibited using coupon and refund offers to promote alcoholic beverages," he explained. "Back in April 1981, we were one of the first brands to try coupons. We ran 50-cent Cella coupons in South Carolina. Our objective was to get people to try our wines."

And did the coupons work, I asked him.

"They did. We knew from our sales figures that the people who used the coupons came back the next month and bought more Cella wines."

There were problems, however. Tommasini said a few liquor stores weren't used to taking coupons.

"Do state laws affect your coupon and refund offers?" I wanted to know.

"At the present time," Tommasini said, "10 states allow us to use coupons and 32 states permit refund offers for our wines."

But, again, there are problems. Said Tommasini: "When we receive a refund request from a person who lives in a state that doesn't allow our offer, we must, unfortunately, reject it. That's why our new Chilli-a-Cella Pack-a-Picnic offer is set up in a unique way. In return for a proof-of-purchase from Cella and one from

Supermarket Shopper

Rath Ham, or Kleenex Dinner Napkins, or Mauna Loa Macadamia Nuts, or May-bud Cheeses, consumers will receive a pack of coupons and refund forms that can save them $5 on these products. In those states that don't allow Cella to offer a refund, consumers participate by sending in two of the proofs from the other brands."

This offer requires a refund form. And, explained Tommasini, Cella "will be putting up in the stores more than a million and a half pads of refund request certificates."

He advises that those who can't find the certificates may write to: Aldo Cella, Pack-a-Picnic Request, P.O. Box 629, New York, N.Y. 10018. Requests for the certificate should be mailed by July 31. The offer expires on Oct. 31, 1983.

Overheated husband causes wife to fear for her safety

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. He has become obsessed with sex. He's started to bring home every girls magazine he can find. He also buys books that show pictures of all the different positions to make love.

When we were married 10 years ago, he was a normal, decent man. Then about a year ago he started to get so crazy. Thank God I can't have any children.

Last Sunday he insisted on making love to me four times. By nightfall I was physically and mentally abused. The next morning he woke me up at 4 a.m. wanting sex again. I told him I just couldn't. I was still exhausted by Sunday. He got rough and tried to force me against my will, so I jumped out of bed and ran to the guest room and locked the door.

Abigail VanBuren

He screamed at me, pounded on the door and called me a "bitch" — "I thought he was going to break the door down. He finally gave up, and I stayed in that room until after he left for work.

Abby: I want out of this marriage. I am afraid to stay with this sex maniac. We just moved here and I don't know anybody. Please help me.

— DESPERATE IN DENVER

DEAR DESPERATE: Call "Gate-way" or "Safehouse." Each provides temporary shelter for battered women.

In the meantime you should absolutely not live with him. His sudden preoccupation with sex and his abusive behavior could be symptoms of a mental disorder. Run for your life!

But first leave a note telling him that you refuse to live with him unless he is examined by a psychiatrist and treated for whatever caused the sudden change in his behavior.

Women in other areas with similar problems should call their respective hotline for emergency help.

DEAR ABBY: This is probably the stupidest hang-up you've ever heard about. We have a son, 13 months old. When he was born, we debated between two names, Daniel and Patrick. We decided on Daniel because my brother, whom I love dearly, is named Patrick and I didn't like "Big Pat" and "Little Pat."

So, the problem? As Daniel grew older, he became the image of my brother Patrick, and now I regret not naming him Patrick. It is driving me crazy.

My husband says at this stage of the game we can't change the kid's name.

Why can't we?

— KICKING MYSELF IN BOSTON

DEAR KICKING: You can if you want to. If you want to change his name legally, you should consult a lawyer. Otherwise, you can just start calling "the kid" Patrick.

DEAR ABBY: I need a lawyer and I need one fast. How do I find one who won't charge me an arm and a leg?

TEMPUS FUGIT

DEAR TEMPUS: First ask your friends and associates for their recommendations.

For helpful, detailed information about a lawyer's credentials, consult the Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory. It's the "Who's Who" of lawyers and can be found at your public library.

Don't be shy about "shopping" for a lawyer. For routine legal work such as drawing up a will, closing a real estate deal or checking a lease contract, a low-cost legal clinic may suit your needs, but for trusts, divorce, divorce or other cases, consult a lawyer who specializes in that field.

Find out in advance how much will be charged. Some lawyers expect a retainer fee paid in advance, other charge by the hour, and in personal injury suits, a lawyer may take the case for a percentage of your recovery.
